In the Age of Billions Cold-Blooded Crime Old Bill Did Not Know Europe's Heat and Drouth

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Congress number seventy-three goes home after appropriating for variegated spending between six thousand eight hundred and SEVEN THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS.

No Congress ever appropriated so much in peace times.

In addition to spending about seven thousand million dollars, this Congress guaranteed approximately seven thousand millions more in home mortgages and farm bonds and set up a two thousand million "stabilization fund."

We are living in the era of "BILLIONS."

With Congress gone home, President Roosevelt is lord of all he surveys, which is no great change. He was pretty much that before the adjournment. We have no dictator in the United States, and shall not have one unless something strange and unusual happens, but the President has as much of a dictator's power as he chooses to use.

Congress, with unimportant exceptions, obeyed orders while in session, and the country will look to the President now to initiate and put through whatever he chooses. That situation probably does not suit him. It involves great responsibility.

A cold-blooded story tells about a most important activity in the United States, that of organized crime.

According to the police, Isadore Gutman, aged 27, prosperous in his line, bought a new sedan automobile. His business and that of two associates, Henry Teel, aged 24; Peter Georgianna, aged 25, was "hi-jacking." The hi-jacking criminal watches for other criminals that have stolen truckloads of merchandise or imported truckloads of liquor, holds up the truck, shoots, the driver, steals the merchandise or liquor.

Hi-jacking annoys criminals that are its victims and they discourage hi-jacking whenever possible.

They discouraged Messrs. Gutman, Teel and Georgianna, all three of whom are found in the back seat of Mr. Gutman's

YALE ADOPTS ROOSEVELT WITH LL.D

By Associated Press

New Haven, Ct., June 20—Yale received Franklin Delano Roosevelt, a Harvard graduate, into her family of adopted sons today, conferring on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

While the sun shone from cloudless skies on the ancient elms of the historic campus, inside Woolsey hall—scene of Yale's 233rd commencement—President Roosevelt heard himself called a "brave leader of your people in a time of peril" by Pres. James Rowland Angell as the chief executive received the highest honor the university can bestow on an adopted son.

Harvard's distinguished alumnus became the fourth president to receive an honorary degree from Yale while in office and the second

Dedham Courthouse, June 20—Pale, biting her lips and fighting back the tears which now and again rolled down her freckled cheeks, Norma Millen went on trial before a "man-a-minute jury" today as an accessory of the Needham crimes, facing a possible maximum of 21 years in prison if convicted.

The twelve men of Norfolk county who will decide her fate were chosen in exactly 12 minutes. Thereafter, the trial moved with almost unbelievable speed, Dist. Atty.

Winthrop Girl Dying After Dog Bite

Death in one of its most horrible forms was slowly but relentlessly claiming Arlene Keating, six, today, as her heartbroken parents and medical science stood by, powerless to save her from hydrophobia.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keating, of Shirley street, Winthrop, were summoned to the hospital when death appeared but a short time away.

They were allowed to see the child for a few minutes. After they left the hospital the child was placed in a respirator. Just after noon Arlene was reported in serious condition.

The girl was bitten by a chow dog three weeks ago. She was given the Pasteur treatment and was apparently recovering. She went back to school. Sunday noon, the dreaded virus began to display its power.

She was removed to Children's Hospital and the tragic wait for the agonizing death, which always results in such cases, started.

Word that Farley would remain in high command on the party came after a last minute conference with President Roosevelt, who has the final decision.

DEPUTY SHERIFF CALDWELL

NORMA MILLEN

Norma Millen in her pretty dress of blue, her eyes agleam with exciting nervousness, was led by Deputy Sheriff Caldwell into Dedham court today while a crowd of several hundred persons looked silently upon the drama. Later she wept silently as Prosecutor Dewing told of the Needham killings and said he'd produce the death bullets in her trial. The jury was chosen in 12 minutes—possibly a record. Norma, known for her smile, did not smile once today in court. She clinched her hands, twisted her handkerchief—and wept. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

UNDERTAKERS OUSTED BY MANSFIELD

Sixteen match box coffins in a single grave.

Rough boxes piled on top of each other and set on end in a hole so small that workmen are forced to jump on them to get them in.

NOT A PRAYER

The crack of the tinder wood under heavy boots and a man scrambling out of the grave lest he step on the face of a corpse.

The crash of gravel and stone on the boxes.

And not one prayer.

"The worst scandal in Boston's long history" is the way Mayor Mansfield today described this method of burying the city's poor as he took drastic measures to put an immediate end to it.

He called James A. McMurray, newly appointed chairman of the Board of Overseers of the Public Welfare, on the telephone and ordered him to discharge all city undertakers at once.

And he further ordered that the fees now paid for the burial of welfare recipients be increased from $20 for adults to $25, and from $8 for children to $15.

"These indecent and outrageous funerals—funerals is too dignified a word for them—must not occur again," he said.

Toronto, Ont., June 20 (AP)—A political upheaval similar to that which swept the United States two years ago brought Canada's liberal party into dominance today in the provinces of Ontario and Saskatchewan.

Liberals, whose policies are somewhat like those of the Democratic party in the States, claim 66 seats in Ontario's parliament of 90,

NORMA IN TEARS AS 'MAN-A-MINUTE JURY' HEARS OF CRIME

PROSECUTOR CHARGES SHE AIDED IN GANG ESCAPE

By WIN BROOKS

Edmund R. Dewing completing his charge and finishing with two state witnesses before the luncheon recess

Norma was nervous. Her white-gloved hands were restless. She was crying at adjournment time, although she listened without show of emotion while the district attorney accused her of having participated in plans to shield her husband, Murton, his brother, Irving, and Abe Faher, the trio convicted in the Needham Trust Co. holdup and murder of two policemen.

JURY NOT LOCKED UP

Every man on the jury chosen in record time, was called for the Millen-Faher trial, and every one had been challenged by one or another of the three defendants. Of the men chosen today, five were from Quincy; four from Weymouth, one each from Medway, Canton and Braintree. Six had been challenged by Murton Millen, four by Irving and two by Faher.

Judge Nelson P. Brown ruled that the jury should not be locked up, and cautioned the jurors not to discuss the case, even among themselves, and to report at once any attempt by anyone to mention the case to them.

The jury, which was not conducted on any view, and testimony of the kidnaped bankers, John P. Riordan and Arnold MacIntosh, who were used as shields during the getaway after the Feb. 2 crime, was taken immediately after Dewing completed a half-hour opening.

In his address he promised to show that Norma drove the defendants away from the scene of the crime car burning, that she lived under an assumed name, was present when the crime was discussed and herself signed some of the messages sent from New York to Boston.

MILLENS IN APPEAL

The violet-eyed bride of the convicted machine gun killer, Murton Millen, was brought to trial even as appeals to the Supreme Court from the conviction of her husband and brother-in-law were filed with the clerk here by their counsel, George Stanley Harvey.

Norma wore fashionable and becoming summer attire—a blue and white polka dot dress, white hat and white pumps, flesh colored stockings, white hat and gloves. In court she removed her hat. Her thick, light brown bobbed hair was swept back to expose her pink ears. She appeared very girlish, even younger than her 19 years.

During the morning session she sat with her gloved hands in her lap, her head up. She gazed straight ahead, biting her lip, obviously under strain.

There were tears in her eyes when Dewing, in his opening, outlined the robbery of the bank and told of the murders of Patrolmen Forbes McLeod and Frank O. Haddock by her husband.

She is accused in three indictments of being an accessory after the robbery and both murders but, by ruling of Judge Brown, the only evidence admissable in the attempt to prove her liability must concern aid she may have given Faher.

The court ruled she could not be tried on a charge of aiding Irving, for which she was also indicted, any more than she could be tried for aiding her husband.

"We will show you the bullets," Dewing told the jury. "Some of them came from the machine gun and some of them came from the body of Forbes McLeod.

Norma's chin went down. Buoyed up by messages of hope from her mother and her doomed husband, Norma was brought from Dedham jail at 11:35 through a silent crowd of several hundred persons who had been waiting for two hours at the courthouse rear entrance.

GUARDED BY TROOPERS

Troopers, police and deputies held the crowd back and Norma passed through, her head up, her arm clasped by Deputy Sheriff Everett Caldwell. Mrs. Richard Shedd, jail matron, was at her side.

Norma won a partial victory before her trial commenced. Judge Nelson P. Brown ruled that she could not legally be tried as an accessory to Irving Millen, brother of her husband, Murton, and she was ordered to trial on only those parts of the three indictments which name her as having aided and assisted Abe Faher, third member of the trio convicted of first degree murder in the Needham atrocity.

Judge Brown denied motions to quash and dismiss the indictments, however.

Norma was seated in the courtroom in a chair behind the bar rail on the spot where the grilled cage occupied by her husband during eight weeks of trial had been placed. The cage was removed from the room.

FAMILY NOT REUNITED

Mrs. Shedd, wife of the jailer, in whose charge the bride has been since mid-March, sat beside her. Deputy Caldwell occupied a chair behind her.

The home of Brighton, despite predictions, was not reunited in a unit of defense as she came to trial. Her mother, Mrs. Margaret Smith Brighton of Tewksbury, sat alone in the front row of spectators almost immediately behind her daughter.

Norma's father, Rev. Norman Brighton, retired Natick clergyman, her step-mother, Mrs. Murie Brighton, and her brother, Clarence, sat together in another section of seats. There was no sign of the missing sister Thelma, who vanished seven years ago, and who it was reported yesterday by Police Chief Joseph Dean of Foxboro, might appear at the trial today.

Norma clutched a tiny white handkerchief given her by her mother during a visit to the jail this morning. The bride kissed her mother for something belonging to her to carry as a token of good luck, and Mrs. Brighton gave her the handkerchief.

Norma obviously was nervous, twining the handkerchief in her fingers. She wore no makeup and freckles from her sunnings in the jail yard speckled her cheeks and nose. She appeared very girlish.

MESSAGE FROM WIFE

"Tell her good luck and that I hope she gets out of it," was Murton Millen's message to a jail guard, delivered with his hawk face pressed against the bars of his pit cell, just before his wife left the women's section of the prison.

"I'm going to be brave," Norma told her mother during a visit that lasted nearly an hour before she was driven from the jail to court at 11:00.

There was a long delay this morning before the 19-year-old bride was brought to the office of justice at which her husband, less than a fortnight ago, heard his own doom pronounced.

Motions of Defense Counsel George A. Douglas for quashing and abatement of the three indictments charging her with being an accessory after robbery and after the murders of Patrolmen Forbes McLeod and Frank O. Haddock were argued briefly in a courtroom from which spectators were barred and before Norma came to court.

DEFENSE WINS POINT

Douglas, arguing for abatement, said a relationship of affinity existed between Norma and Irving Millen and that under the law she could not legally be accused as an accessory after any crime committed by him. In this argument he was upheld by Judge Brown.

He then asked dismissal of the indictments, as in each Norma is named in connection with both Irving Millen and Faher.

"The motion to quash in each case will have to be denied," said the court. "The other motion for pleas in abatement in each case is allowed in part. It pertains to Irving Millen but is denied as to such aid and assistance as may have been rendered by Abe Faher. The trial may proceed."

The message of hope from her doomed husband gave Norma to the courtroom which for the next two weeks will be the scene of her battle for liberty in the face of the state's threat to imprison her for 21 years.

A few minutes later, from the women's section of the jail—he did not see her go—the girl he married last November was marched through an even larger crowd than that which saw him condemned to die to the scene of her own trial, shaken fighting back the tears.

STATE POLICE ON GUARD

A state police detail under Lieutenant Thomas H. Mitchell and local police manned the courthouse approaches and corridors as the girl—"nervous but confident"—came to the start of a promised two weeks' trial.

The possible appearance of her long-vanished and widely sought sister, Thelma Brighton, whom Norma has not seen for seven years, added to the interest in proceedings. Norma, herself was doubtful that Police Chief Dean could fulfill his promise to produce her, however.

"I believe Thelma is dead," she told her father.

The lean, tanned, former cleric, now an automobile salesman, had one daughter vanish under mysterious and sinister circumstances, never to set eyes on her again, and another step from his household into a strange marriage that terminated with her arrest, on her honeymoon, in connection will one of the most ruthless gang crimes in the history of the state.

'I Quieted Norma's Sobbing,' Mother Tells Reporters

Mrs. Margaret Smith Brighton, mother of Norma Millen, bride of the doomed killer, Murton Millen, talked to reporters today after spending 45 minutes with her daughter in Dedham jail.

"Norma wept," she said, "but I soothed her." That was just before the trial started. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

CHEAPER HOMES DRIVE NEARS

By Associated Press

Washington, June 20—Three new initials, FHA, are about to burst upon the American scene in a big push to make good homes cheaper and more numerous.

Everybody believes the commander-in-chief of the drive will be Henry L. Hopkins, now federal relief boss.

Here are the principal developments expected:

First, a modernization program will start within 30 days. This provides that any property owner may borrow up to $2000 to recondition his building.

Second, insurance of building and loan shares becomes efective almost immediately.

Third, various divisions of the FHA will be set up.

Undertakers Ousted in Burial Expose

the mayor after Bishop Henry Knox Sherill, of the Episcopal diocese of Boston, had forwarded to him a letter from the Reverend Russell L. Dicks, Presbyterian chaplain at Massachusetts General Hospital.

In the letter, the minister described one of the wholesale burials that he had witnessed. Five adults, a child and 10 babies, were crowded into a single hole, he said.

Undertakers, the mayor said, had been in the habit of keeping bodies until they could dispose of them half-a-dozen or more at a time, instead of burying them within a reasonable number of days after death.

16 LINED UP

In his letter to Bishop Sherill, the Rev. Mr. Dick said that he went to Mount Hope remetery, where the dole receptacles are buried, at the request of a social worker, who asked him to say a prayer at the burial of a colored women whose employer had refused to defray her funeral expenses.

At the cemetery, he said, he was led to a large hole around which a few workmen were standing.

"Which one of these are you interested in?" he was asked.

He told the men.

"All right, we'll let you know when we get to it."

Then they began to unload a funeral coach. With growing amazement, the minister counted the cheap boxes until he saw 16 on the ground beside the hole.

"The hole was not wide enough to allow all the box to rest on its bottom; one of the men dropped down on top of it to force it down with his weight. The top of the box cracked. He stepped cross-wise quickly. It would go no farther down," Mr. Dick wrote in his letter.

FEARES NEW

"The little ones were placed at short distances along the top of the others. I looked along this large grave to where one could see that there had been many other such informal, business-like assignments."

As the minister said the funeral prayers over the heaped-up coffins, he noticed that the grave-diggers stared at him in wonderment. Prayers at these burials were something new.

"From the silence, I raised my head to see two of the men looking out from behind the coach with a puzzled look. I nodded to them and to the coachman. One had been standing behind me with his spade already thrust into the mound.

"As we turned, there was the crash of gravel and stones on the boxes: five adults and eleven little ones in a hole."

The minister's letter to Bishop Sherrill was dated November 22, 1933. It was forwarded to the mayor on March 30 of this year.

Mayor Mansfield took the matter up with William FP. Long, the city's park commissioner. He replied to the mayor on April 12 that it would be fitting to have a religious service read at the burials, but that was something beyond his control.

NO DEMANDS

Nowhere in his letter to the mayor did he deny that 16 corpses were buried in the one grave, but there is a profuse excuse for the necessity of employing welfare workerer to dig the grave.

"The men were instructed to be respectful," he said.

It is customary, Long went on, to bury two adults or four children in a single grave. These are marked by stones supplied by the city, and records of them are kept.

It was after receiving this report that the mayor launched his own investigatio nthat resulted in today's action.

COFFIN'S LOVE SUIT SETTLED

The $20,000 suit of George W. Coffin, of Dale street, Brighton, against Willard M. Joseph of Hillside, avenue, Arlington, for alleged alienation of Mrs. Coffin's affections, reached a surprise conclusion today when settlement out of court was arranged shortly before the trial was to be resumed.

According to Attorney Rubin Garber for the plaintiff, and Attorney Charles Hayes for the defendant, the settlement was made for between $900 and $1000.

Judge Daniel T. O'Donnell dismissed the jury after telling of the arrangement.

Norma, an Enigma in Blue, Calm in Court

By PEGGY DOYLE

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Dedham, June 20—Out of the welter of murders which gave Massachusetts a sudden and unenviable prominence in crime-swept America, there stepped today into the limelight Norma Brighton Millen, a pretty question mark in a background of ugly certainties.

Bitter assertions have been made regarding this girl by those who might well be embittered. Staunch defense has been made of her by those who, knowing her all her life, never had a moment's reason to associate her with anything criminal, cruel or even inconsiderate.

The 12 good men and true who will be selected to pass upon the guilt or innocence of this attractive defendant will encounter nuances of evidence infinitely less tangible than are presented in most criminal trials.

BLUE DRESS FOR TRIAL

She wore for her trial debut a blue, white-polka-dotted dress purchased by her father, the Reverend Norman Brighton, for the most momentous and dreaded day in her life.

An inexpensive white hat, white pumps and flesh hosiery completed her first day's court costume, which, according to Attorney Douglas, has not the slightest interest for his unhappy client—a state of mind which is entirely new in Norma's experience.

Norma, who not so long ago found parental suspension irksome and revelled in her freedom from it during her brief honeymoon, now admits frankly that were it not for her father's tireless guidance and her mother's unquestioning love, she would not be able to face trial and the countless curious, critical, calculating eyes of court fans.

Mrs. Margaret Smith Brighton, mother of the defendant, paid an early visit to the jail and found Norma crying because she had not arrived earlier. Mrs. Brighton said her daughter soon regained her composure.

New Battle Opens in Chaco Warfare

Buenos Aires, June 20 (AP)—One of the bitterest battles in the bloody history of the Chaco boreal wilderness was fought today along three fronts.

Communiques from Paraguay and Bolivia and information from private sources revealed that both armies have launched supreme drives to end the warfare. Paraguay has attacked the sector around Bolivia's Fort Ballivian, where a victory would endanger the last Bolivian stronghold within the limits Paraguay claims in the Chaco.

NORMA FLINCHES AS DEWING SHOUTS 'MACHINE GUN!'

By JAMES J. SMITH

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Dedham Courthouse, June 20—While the pretty defendant flinched, bit her lips, drooped her head and closed her eyes, District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing unfolded today the part Norma Brighton Millen is alleged to have played in the happenings after murder and robbery at the Needham Trust Company.

Dewing's opening lasted little more than 20 minutes. He first called witnesses to establish the crime at Needham, this being a requirement of law to establish crime before an accessory may be convicted.

District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing began his opening by describing the crimes in Needham and reminded the jury that the defendant's alleged aid and assistance after the crimes was to be applied to Abe Faher alone and not to Norma's husband, Murton, or her brother-in-law, Irving Millen.

"We will show you that the husband of this defendant walked into the Needham Trust Co., with Irving Millen and Abe Faher and that Murton carried a smachine gun," he said.

That Doomed Husband Dewing Recites Story

(At Dewing's mention of the murder weapon Norma's eyes closed and her head drooped lower. She let her lip continually.)

That machine gun was loaded with 45-caliber bullets. We will produce the bullets, some of them taken fro mthe body of Forbes McLeod.

"We will show that Faher shot Mr. Bartholomew, a 77-year-old ban kemployee, and that the husband of the defendant went into a side office of the bank and shouted, 'Here comes a cop,' and that he then fired the machine gun and killed Forbes McLeod.

"That they took $13,000 from the bank, drove away with Murton Millen at the wheel and the machine gun at his side. That the husband of this defendant fired the machine gun through the windshield of the car as they drove and killed Patrolman Haddock.

"That they then drove to 30 Lawrence avenue, Roxbury, to the Norma Millen, this defendant, was waiting. She was taken there that morning before the crimes. She was then taken to 1175 Boylston street, Boston, where she occupied an apartment with her husband. That there was a division of the loot. We will show you what this defendant did to assist her husband, Irving Millen and Abe Faher.

"We will show that on Feb. 6 she drove a small car to Norwood, following a car in which rode her husband, Irving Millen and Abe Faher. That they burned the car whileshecaid eden ..... the car while she waited, and that they then drove back to Boston in the car with her.

"That she went to New York with her husband and was present in a hotel room when Saul Messinger, a school chum of her husband's called.

"We'll Show That She Fled from Boston.

"We'll show that Norma Millen came back to Boston and knew of the battery in the burned car being traced to the Millens and Faher. That after she heard the broadcast of the search for them she went to another apartment where she lived under the name of Clifton and that Feb. 16, she was seen in great excitement running to a telephone to call a taxicab.

"That she entered the cab with her husband and Irving Millen, they carrying suitcases containing the machine gun and other weapons. They went to New York and we will show that she was present when there was another conversation in a hotel room with Saul Messinger.

"That arrangements were made during that conservation for the decivery of messages to ostonand that this defendant wrote and signed some of those messages. That she was present when Murton and Irving Millen spoke of never being taken alive for the crimes they committed.

"We will show that she assisted her husband and brother-in-law and by so doing prevented the police from apprehending Abe Faher.

"We will show you from the testimony what took place at the time of the arrest, what statements the defendant made at that time, what statements she made when she came back to Boston.

"We will show you beyond a reasonable doubt that Abraham Faher, Murton Millen and Irving Millen committed a robbery and during the robbery a murder ensued. You will find that Faher was as responsible for the murder as the man who fired the shots.

'We will show that the defendant assisted, harbored, concealed and, by her actions, we will show that she did to prevent Abraham Faher from being arrested by the police."

Bank Teller Riordar First State Witness

Dewing completed his opening at 12:32 and immediately called the first witness for the state.

Five state witnesses were called into the courtroom to be sworn. They included Fireman Timothy Coughlin, Arhold MacIntosh, treasurer of the Needham Trust Co. John D. Riordan, teller, and Lieutenant Richard Salerno of the Needham fire department.

FIND BODY! IS CRY OF POLICE IN SEARCH FOR MISSING BRIDE

RACE AGAINST TIME STARTS TO KEEP PODERJAY JAILED

Vienna Officials Say They Cannot Hold "Captain" Much Longer Unless Clues Are Found; Sister in Hunt

New York, June 20—Find the body!

A race against time was started today by police of London, Vienna and New York to connect the dashing "Captain" Ivan Poderjay with the mysterious disappearance of Agnes Tufverson, 43-year-old New York lawyer whom he married and then "lost."

While efforts were being made here to extradite him from Vienna where he is being held, police were pinning their hopes on a threat of a break between Poderjay and the beautiful wife he married in London, Marguerite Susanne Ferrand, who also is being held in Vienna.

LOYALTY IS BLOCK

Police say it is the unbounded loyalty of the beautiful English blonde to the Don Juan, who yesterday denied she was his legal wife, that has blocked their efforts in obtaining definite information.

But Mme. Ferrand has hired a new lawyer, Leopold Bestermann. He immediately indicated he had no use for Poderjay and no intention of shielding him either from the charge of bigamy now lodged against him for his marriage to Miss Tufverson in New York eight months after his marriage to Mme. Ferrand, or from the suspicion of murder now freely voiced by the police of Vienna and New York.

POLICE ON MOVE

While police were hoping the break would reveal important clues and information, they were not sitting idly by waiting for the break to come.

With Vienna police asserting they could not continue to hold Poderjay in connection with the case unless the body of Miss Tufverson were found or a specific charge were placed against him, there was feverish activity here to supply one or the other.

Deputy Chief Inspector Sullivan of New York said last night:

"The solution of the Tufverson mystery, I believe, will be found in New York, though we have been greatly aided by the discoveries abroad."

And while every step that Poderjay made during his whirlwind courtship of the middle-aged lawyer here was being traced, police in Vienna, noted for their ability to "break" suspects, again went to work on the pseudo captain and his beautiful "wife."

As was the case yesterday, when she became hysterical while being questioned, Mme. Ferrand was highly excited at today's inquiry Poderjay was calm. The inquisition was in private and police did not reveal the nature of the answers to their questions.

Poderjay, often portrayed as a dapper Don Juan who wrecked many hearts in many lands, was unpronned and unshaven as he faced the police inquisitor. His erstwhile natty suit was wrinkled and unpressed. He was collarless and his shoes were unlaced.

Both Poderjay and Mme. Ferrand have engaged lawyers to defend them. It was regarded as significant that they have hired different lawyers, indicating a possibility of a rift in their relations, although Mme. Ferrand still protests her faith in Poderjay and her affection for him.

BLOOD STAINS SCOUTED

One of the most important clues in the solution of the mystery was blasted when the police chemist at Vienna announced that stains found on the lining of the wardrobe trunk in which Miss Tufverson packed her wedding finery were not blood stains, as originally announced.

It was from this trunk that Mme. Ferrand took Miss Tufverson's trousseau and had all the clothes altered. She has told conflicting stories concerning the trunk and its contents.

With the search for the body being pressed, a stop-gap means was devised by New York authorities to prevent Poderjay from slipping out of custody. They have decided to press a grand larceny charge brought by Miss Susan Sawtell, a shopping agent here, who said Miss Tufverson and Poderjay failed to pay a $1500 dress bill.

Sally Tufverson, pretty young sister of the missing lawyer-bride, is devoting all her efforts here to help the police in any possible way in their attempts to find her older sister.

"If only I could think of something that would help," she said.

Agnes loved her work. She kept at it night and day because she was absorbed in it.

LONDON CLUE REPORTED

Miss Tufverson's sister, Olive, in Detroit, added a further note of melancholy to the events of the day. When told that her sister's briefcase had been found in the Vienna trunk, Olive stated that it was a "talisman and trophy" of her sister's remarkable career, following her graduation from New York University, and her studies at Columbia University.

What may prove an important clue in the case was disclosed by International News Service when one of its London reporters located a jeweler who had charged the initials on a silver candy box for Ivan Poderjay, who is now under arrest in Vienna in connection with her disappearance.

Hunt Pushed

Highlights in the enigmatic case of Agnes Tufverson, missing New York bride, are:

Police of New York, London and Vienna spurred their search for the missing lawyer's body and increased their efforts to hold Ivan Poderjay, who married Miss Tufverson, in jail at Vienna.

Poderjay and his "other wife," Mme. Ferrand, are believed to be reaching the parting of the ways, and police are hopeful that a break between the two will bring out new developments.

At Brighton, England, a baby was found in a trunk at the same railroad station where a woman's body was found several days ago. Police have established there is no connection with the Tufverson case.

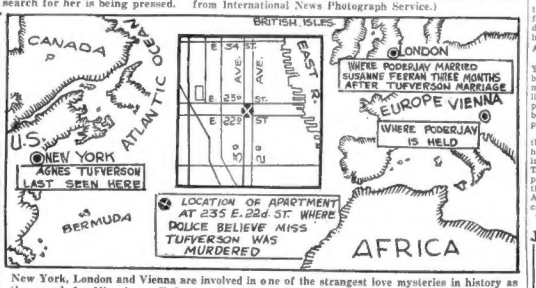
Sister Helps in World Hunt for Missing Bride

AGNES TUFVERSON

Miss Agnes Tufverson, brilliant lawyer, disappeared shortly after she was wooed and wed by "Captain" Ivan Poderjay. She was to sail to Europe on her honeymoon but, police insist, she never got there. A world-wide search for her is being pressed.

SALLY TUFVERSON

Miss Sally Tufverson, sister of the missing bride, is in New York to aid police in their world-wide search. She said that Agnes was "the most wonderful sister in the world" and couldn't understand her attraction to Ivan Poderjay. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)



New York, London and Vienna are involved in one of the strangest love mysteries in history as the search for Miss Agnes Tufverson—or her body—is being pressed. The inset shows the part of New York in which Miss Tufverson lived with her late home at 235 E. 22d street marked.

STEP-BY-STEP IN MYSTERY

By International News Service

New York, June 20—What happened to Agnes Tufverson? is she dead or alive?

MARCH 22, 1933—Poderjay, posing as an ex-captain in the Jugo-Slavian army, marries blonde Mlle. Suzanne Ferrand in London.

SUMMER, 1933—Poderjay meets Miss Tufverson, brilliant woman lawyer, aboard the liner, Ile De France.

DEC. 16, 1933—Poderjay makes two mysterious trips. In the morning he taxis to various South American steamship piers. In the evening he meets a mysterious blonde and rides with her to an address on 17th street.

DEC. 20, 1933—Miss Tufverson and Poderjay taxi to the Hamburg-American line piers, quarrel, and the woman returns to her apartment. She is seen at 11 p. m., by [illegible] r maid, and never again.

Dec. 22, 1933—Poderjay returns to Miss Tufverson's apartment after a 48-hour absence. His luggage is shipped to the White Star dock pier, and he sails that night on the Olympic, taking all his meals in his stateroom where he watches a large trunk.

Dec. 28, 1933—Poderjay is met in Southampton by Mme. Ferrand.

Jan. 2, 1934—Sally Tufverson, sister of the missing woman, received a cablegram, supposedly from Agnes, stating she and her husband are going to India.

SLAIN BABY IN TRUNK ADDS TO MYSTERY

Infant's Body Found in England at Same Place as Woman's

By International News Service

London, June 20—Still gasping from the shock of finding the torso of a murdered woman in Brighton Railway station, Great Britain was given a new thrill of horror today when the body of a slain baby was found in a trunk in the luggage room of the same station.

The baby's age, police said, was somewhere between four months and one year.

The finding of the woman's body and that of the baby were immediately linked together in the minds of the public and the police. Police announced after a preliminary investigation, however, that there was no connection between the two crimes.

LINK STILL CONSIDERED

The baby's body was deposited in the railway baggage room on Feb. 24 last, the records showed. The body of the woman was brought to the station June 6.

The theory that the two murders might have been the work of the same slayer, nevertheless, was not immediately discarded and police continued to investigate all possible angles of the two puzzling cases.

ANNOUNCES MOTIVE

Sir Bernard Spilsbury, Scotland Yard pathologist, who has come to be regarded in Great Britain as the modern Sherlock Holmes, established that the woman was an expectant mother. A child would have been born to her, Sir Bernard reported, in about four months.

Sir Bernard also reported that the body was that of a woman in her early twenties, five feet three inches tall and of medium weight. This, in the minds of the police, proved their previous conclusion that the body was not that of Miss Agnes Tufverson, missing American woman lawyer.

STEEL DISPUTE FACES NEW DEADLOCK

Roosevelt May Have to Use Powers Granted Him by Congress

By Associated Press

Washington, June 20—A new deadlock threatened today in the steel dispute. There appeared a possibility that peace powers Congress has just granted President Roosevelt may have to be used.

Secretary Perkins, to whom the President has given the task of averting a strike, studied the latest proposals of management and unions, said to be in conflict on a vital point of collective bargaining.

Union leaders looked to Mr. Roosevelt's authority to name a peace board as a possible means of settlement if negotiations now in progress fail.

"LEFT WING" RESTIVE

"Today's developments mean we'll have peace in the industry, at least temporarily," Michael F. Tighe, president of the Steel Union, said after a long conference with Miss Perkins.

Union leaders might chafe under prolonged negotiations.

So-called "left-wingers" in the union already have shown indications that they don't like much talk without definite decisions.

Both the union and management have placed their newest cards on Miss Perkins' table.

POINT OF DIFFERENCE

The union suggested a three-man board be set up to settle disputes. Management is believed to have proposed such a board also. The principal difference was understood to be that the union insisted on majority rule after the board holds plant elections, while the employers held out for proportional representation.

Pet Coyote Slain, Wore Neck Bell

Lewiston, Ida., June 30—A belled coyote, slain here recently, is believed to have been the pet of "H. H. Burns, Ore.," as that inscription was found imprinted inside the bell.

Burns is 400 miles from here, indicating the animal probably traveled the distance in wandering since its youth when the sheep bell was placed about its neck.

Lawrence Girl Hurt in Crash

Miss Bertha Langlois, 22, of Farley street, Lawrence, sustained cuts of the face and head when an auto operated by W. James Dore, of Water street, Lawrence, crashed into a parked truck on South Main street, Reading. She was treated at the office of Dr. George W. Baisley.

ILL MATE AND JEAN HARLOW MAY REUNITE

Hollywood, June 20 — Rumors there might be a reconciliation between Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen actress, and Harold Rosson, her estranged husband, were circulated here when it became known she was concerned over his condition. Rosson was stricken with an infantile paralysis attack in the epidemic here.

Miss Harlow could not be reached for comment on the reports, but it was learned she had been keeping in constant communication with Rosson by telephone.

Rosson was in quarantine at the home of a sister, Gladys Rosson, and the glamorous screen actress thus was unable to visit him, despite her anxiety.

The film cameraman was stricken last week after taking a swim in a private pool, but his illness was hidden from the public. Attending physicians said he had passed the crisis and there probably would be no lasting affliction.

Although Miss Harlow and Rosson separated several weeks ago, and speculation has arisen at various times as to whether the actress had romantic leanings toward some other man, no divorce action has been filed.

Miss Harlow announced the separation while acting as matron of honor at a Hollywood wedding. Rosson moved to a club.

The cameraman is Miss Harlow's third husband. Her first was Charles F. McGrew. She divorced him and subsequently married Paul Bern, film executive, who committed suicide a few months after their wedding.

Rosson and the actress became acquainted while she was Mrs. Bern. In several films starring the glamorous blonde, Rosson was the cameraman. After their separation this combination was discontinued at their studio. Company officials said, however, the shift was a coincidence and had nothing to do with the marital breakup.

Providence, R. I., June 20—Harold C. Brown of this city was elected treasurer of Brown University at the annual meeting of the Brown corporation.

Ill Wind May Blow Good

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good—and the ill wind that struck Harold Rosson when he became ill with infantile paralysis may turn out to be the good wind that will re-unite him with his glamorous wife, Jean Harlow, Jean, it has been learned, is keeping in constant touch with Harold. The picture shows them when everything was rosey in their romance. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

JUROR CHARGES 'BRIBE' DIRECT TO DONNELLY

Testimony that he had taken, John J. Donnelly, of Winthrop, alleged to have bribed two jurors, to the home of one of them and that arrangements were made there for a verdict for the plaintiff was presented in Suffolk Superior court by James B. McCann, of West Roxbury, today.

Donnelly is on trial charged with jury bribing, obstruction of justice and conspiracy to corrupt a jury in connection with two civil suits two years ago.

The cases were one in which William Wilcox was awarded an $8000 verdict against Joseph Smythe and another in which Mrs. Ina Downs was given a verdict of $5278.84 against a Boston furniture company.

MEETING NEAR CITY HALL

McCann testified he was a junior in the Wilcox-Smythe case and met Donnelly and two men in City Hall avenue after the verdict was returned.

"I went with them to a Tremont street building," he testified. "They asked me why the jury had not voted an award of $11,000 instead of $8000. "I told them the jury felt that way."

McCann said he left the place and later met Donnelly in Tremont street and the latter asked if he knew a juror in Mrs. Downs' suit.

"Was Attorney Mayberry trying that case?" District Attorney Doyle asked.

"Yes," answered McCann.

"We went to the juror's home in Roslindale.. He was Karl M. Kohler.

CHARGES $50 PASSED

"Donnelly asked Kohler if he favored a verdict for the plaintiff and mentioned something about giving him money. I think Kohler agreed but I'm not sure. I didn't pay much attention to the conversation"

"Tell us substantially what was said," interrupted Doyle.

"Well, substantially, Kohler said he would try to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff. I think Donnelly promised him $50."

McCann testified he met Donnelly after the verdict was returned and that they went to a German club where Kohler was employed.

"We sat at a table," he said, "and Donnelly handed Kohler $50. He gave me $10."

Under cross-examination he admitted Kohler might have told Donnelly he jury would bring in a verdict for the plaintiff anyway. He also admitted he might have felt he was doing wrong.

Baby "Dead" 2 Hours, Thrives

New York, June 20—"Dead" for two hours after birth here, the baby daughter of Mrs. Esther Rauch howled lustily in Gramercy hospital nursery, while doctors said she had more than a two to one chance to survive.

The infant was strangled by its umbilical cord before delivery. Dr. Bernard Zaglin injected alpha lobin into its thigh and a minute later injected adrenalin chloride into the baby's heart. As the eyelids fluttered, he forced air from his own into the child's lungs.

ever to come to New Haven to receive the honor.

STAYS FOR RACES

Presidents Washington and McKinley were awarded degrees in absentia, while another Roosevelt —Theodore—came to New Haven in the fall of 1901 to accept the honor.

President Roosevelt, who planned to remain in Connecticut to watch his son, Franklin row in the Harvard freshman crew against the Elis Friday, headed a list of 12 distinguished men who received honorary degrees. In addition, the University conferred 1,100 degrees in courses to students in the undergraduate, graduate and professional schools.

The addition of a ninth residential college — Timothy Dwight, named after two of its presidents— to its extensive group of buildings of distinctive architecture, was announced by President Angell to the alumni this afternoon.

This ninth college comes through the gift of Edward S. Harkness, '97, of New York, who has given other colleges and buildings to the university representing an outlay of millions of dollars.

DR. CONANT HONORED

Others awarded honorary degrees were: James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard; William Lyon Phelps, Lampson professor of English literature, emeritus, of Yale, doctor of laws; Frederick George Keyes, of Cambridge, professor of physical chemistry research at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and director of the George Eastman research laboratory; Dr. Adolf Meyer of Baltimore, psychiatrist-in-chief of Johns Hopkins Hospital, doctor of science; John Baillie of New York, Ewing Veli professor of systematic theology at Union Theology Seminary, doctor of divinity.

SUPREME COURT GETS NEW JOB

By Associated Press

Washington, June 20—The Supreme court may call on some of America's outstanding lawyers to help unravel legal kinks and speed up legal procedure.

An enormous task fell on the high tribunal today as the result of a bill signed by President Roosevelt. It empowers the court to lay down uniform rules of practice and procedure for all federal courts.

The President called it a "most important" move and other observers saw in it an opening wedge toward making all legal procedure—state as well as federal—more uniform and simple. For generations there have been complaints that the courts are hamstrung by technicalities and delay.

Sea Serpents Start to Bite

By Associated Press

Senate Group for Pari-Mutuel Bill

The Senate Ways and Means committee has agreed to report favorably on the bill authorizing pari-mutuel horse and dog race betting in Massachusetts with a referendum to the voters in the November election.

Before reporting the measure, several amendments, it is learned, will be recommended, the nature of which is undisclosed. When reported, the bill will be in charge of Senator Henry Parkman of Boston.

CITY FIREMAN IS ARRESTED

Lester Brasher, 40, of Bowdoin street, Dorchester, Boston fireman, was arrested for drunkenness and for sounding a false alarm today after residents of Dorchester and Roxbury had been aroused during the night by a series of such alarms.

Police say they found Brasher standing in front of a fire alarm box at Holbourne and Gannett streets, Roxbury, a few minutes after a false alarm had been sounded from that box.

He was arrested and brought to Dudley street station. Later it was decided that he would be brought into court tomorrow to answer the charges.

Police said they expect to link Brasher with the sounding of all the false alarms during the night and early morning. All were in the area centering around Quincy street, Dorchester, and in Roxbury near the Dorchester line.

the spread of the infection. Unless this is halted the virus spreads through the nervous system to the brain. Once the disease develops the patient cannot be saved.

Two other Winthrop children were also bitten by the dog which infected the little Keating girl. Both have been undergoing regular Pasteur treatments and doctors reported them apparently out of danger today.

They are Edward L. Housman, nine, of Shirley street and William Ward of Floyd street.

The chow dog which bit the children was the property of John A. Orrall of Floyd street. He and other members of his family are all being given the Pasteu treatment.

With communities around Greater Boston slowly becoming aroused, the State Department of Health issued a warning to all dog owners to keep them leashed and innoculate them against the virus.

Action has been taken in some communities to keep dogs restrained. Winthrop police ordered all unmuzzled dogs picked up. They will be examined by a veterinarian and shot, if there is any trace of rabies.

MANY CITIES ACT

Melrose has supplied $800 for a clinic for the immunization of all dogs. Malden residents are also aroused. In Lynn, residents have been in fear of rabies for the past week, as a result of the death of seven-year-old Norma Brewer. This dog was not caught.

Dr. Gaylord Anderson, of the State Department of Health, reveals that the situation at present is on a par with the last serious outbreak of rabies in Massachusetts in 1931.

In the first five months of this year there were 116 positive heads examined by medical authorities. In 1931, the number of positive heads averaged 40 in March and April, but dropped to 4 in August.

DOG VICTIMS INCREASE

Dr. Anderson's figures show that dog bites in the State this year have been increasing steadily from 340 in January to 843 in May. The figures for June, not yet completed, are about the same as in May. This is an average of more than 200 a week.

Many of these do not prove infectious, but only prompt treatment has saved them, Dr. Anderson's figures show.

England and Australia are the only places in the world where rabies has been eradicated. Strict enforcement of laws, requiring quarantine at ports of entry, have eliminated the disease there.

Rabies has shown a gradual but marked increase in Massachusetts since 1916. The state data shows that more than 50,000 persons undergo the Pasteur treatment in the United States each year.

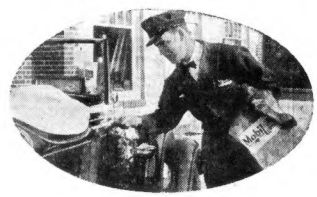
A NEIGHBOR OF YOURS— Worth knowing!



The man at Your Socony Station or Dealer does a lot to Make your Travels Happier

YOU'LL FIND HIM just down the street—at that nearby service station with the sign of the Flying Red Horse. He's a neighbor of yours—and a good man to know.

He realizes you're usually in a hurry. So you'll find him coming up quickly —or waiting for you—when you turn in the driveway.

You'll notice he moves quickly about your car—taking care of things that need attention. You'll discover that he knows what grade of oil you car needs— what pressure your tires require—or when it's time to change an oil filter.

But that isn't all, by a long shot. He's really glad to be able to help you. Glad to clean your windshield—check your battery—fill your radiator. Glad to tell you how to get where you want to go—glad to make any little adjustment that he can about your car.

He knows that the gasoline and oil he sells—Socony Mobilgas and Mobiloil —are the best that can be made. And he takes pride in giving service that's just as satisfying to his customers, just as much above the average.

• • •

GET ACQUAINTED with the nearest Socony serviceman. Watch him as he works. The sign of the Flying Red Horse stands for friendly, considerate service —as well as for good gasoline and oil.

WHEN HE SMILES HE MEANS IT! And you'll find that the Socony serviceman is smiling most of the time! Get acquainted with the one in your neighborhood—he's a mighty good man to know because he really knows cars!

JUST FILLING THE RADIATOR? Not by a long shot! He's inspecting your tires, too—making sure they're all properly inflated. If he finds one that's soft, he'll ask you to pull up to the air hose so that he can inflate it for you.

400 PROTEST "MARKLESS" PUPILS

Abolition of the present "non-marking" system in the Newton public school system is demanded in a petition signed by 400 parents, and presented to the Newton school committee at a meeting held in the technical building of the Newton High school.

The present system was branded by protestants as "an experiment in Socialism" and one which "tends to destroy personality and stifle individuality."

"We assert that the non-marking plan constitutes a usurpation by the teaching profession of certain functions that properly belong to parents," the petition reads.

"While the law requires proper schooling of children, it does not direct that the parents shall be kept in ignorance of the mental progress of their children or that teachers shall assume complete responsibility for the mental development of their pupils."

Fathers and mothers miss the report card and in failing to receive one they are losing their only contact with the child's school life, it was pointed out in the petition.

Among those who signed the petition are Professor Charles B. Breed of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mrs. Raymond Fuller, Benjamin Cherlok, Dr. George Bowers, Mrs. Gerald Sullivan, and Professor Chester W. Tudbury, of the mathematical department of Wentworth Institute.

PLYMOUTH ANNOUNCES THE SPECIAL SIX

RECENTLY you read about important reductions in Plymouth prices. This week Plymouth again makes news.

It's the introduction of THE SPECIAL SIX . . . and it changes the whole picture in the low-price field.

When Plymouth announces a new model, thousands of people go to see it. We urge that you take a few minutes of your time and join them.

It will pay you to do this for two reasons. One of them is the car itself . . . and the other its price.

You'll find a big car . . . a new "luxury" model . . . with all the major Engineering Features that made Plymouth famous . . . yet a 4-door Sedan costs practically the same as comparable models of the very lowest-priced cars—WITHOUT ALL THESE FEATURES!

Consider that statement. Think what it means.

It means that without spending an extra penny, you can own this Special Six with Hydraulic Brakes . . . instead of a car with ordinary brakes.

It means that your family can ride surrounded and protected by a BODY OF SAFETY-STEEL . . . instead of the ordinary composite kind.

It means that you can have the added comfort of Individual Wheel Springing and patented Floating Power engine mountings. You get all four major features without paying a penalty.

For here is a smart automobile . . . with the luxury features people want. And the 4-door Sedan is priced at $620 f. o. b. factory.

Today the prices of "All Three" low-priced cars are virtually the same. Don't buy blindfolded. Don't let "habit" rule your judgment. See this Plymouth Special Six at any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer.

Waldorf
at the Sign of the Red Apple
A Delicious New Warm Weather Meal
SALAD SANDWICH PLATE

OCCASIONALLY . . . IN FACT IT is more than "occasionally," these warm and muggy days, many of us go out for lunch or stop for dinner almost with a sigh of resignation. Hunger has called us, but the thoughts of common and accepted things to eat fail in any way to whet our appetites.

● At such times we can only attribute our feelings to the weather . . . it's not ourselves, but rather a more or less uncomfortable day. We long for some menu that is "different," a new flavor, light, a few vegetables . . . yet hearty enough to be sustaining.

● In other words, we are hungry . . . but hungry for what?

● Let me give you a new Waldorf idea for just such an occasion . . . a "special" so tasty, so nourishing and so different that it answers all the demands for a "tempt-your-appetite" meal. We call it Sandwich Salad Plate, which will do for a name, although it in no way describes the flavor and the delicious ingredients that go into it.

● Perhaps I can do better! . . . Dainty salmon and celery salad sandwiches on lettuce leaves, a generous amount of vegetable salad, sliced fresh tomatoes, cucumber slices, radishes, a dill pickle . . . and, of course, the usual fine Waldorf mayonnaise dressing.

● Intriguing . . . isn't it? And it tastes even better than it sounds!

SCOTS' WHISKEY BEST IN 10TH YEAR OF BOOM

Scotland, too, is coming back, H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service foreign correspondent, writes in the ninth article of a series on British recovery. Workers are returning to jobs in the shipyards and the whiskey trade is booming.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part forbidden.)

Glasgow, June 20—Live furnaces spell recovery. Night in the English midlands flames with signs of prosperity on the way.

They are iron smelters, steel plants, chemical works. Today much of British industry is working night shifts.

Just a year ago these smithies were dark. The spark of life was quenched.

Here in Glasgow the mighty Isetso of 21,534, hull of the Cunarder that one day will be the "largest, finest, fastest" in the world, is once more alive.

SUBSIDY ADVANCED

It lay there empty, sneering massively at recovery. Now the government has advanced a subsidy. Now the ship gleams with light. Red hot rivets, tossed expertly, trace curves. Sparks cascade from pneumatic hammers. Every porthole glows.

Queen Mary has promised to christen the ship when they launch her in September.

In another part of Glasgow there is a great deal of marrying going on. Marrying was always a sign of recovery. In good times people marry more, in bad times less.

In Glasgow, they are marrying at the rate of millions of gallons a year more than they did in 1933. Millions of gallons are going into polygamous, but legal relationship with one another. Whiskey blenders call their art "marrying."

It is a mistake, declared the bond manager, who makes his living knowing whiskey, to suppose that the older whiskey is the better it gets. Seven years is the earliest age it ought to be drunk. At 10, he insisted, it is usually at its best. After 12 years it seldom improves, and, save for exceptional cases, it may deteriorate beyond that age.

THEY LOVE CHURCH

Scotland whiskey is looking up. Glasgow is no bright place in the best of times. It is much happier in its grime today than it was a year ago.

The Scotch are mystics and practical men. They love the church and make much whiskey. Depression was obscure to them, and they pretend no logical explanations of recovery. They accept both from the hand of God.

Next to me on a bench in George square near the railway station sat a bearded Scotchman with an eye whose glitter was not at first perceptible. Above us towered a statue to Walter Scott. The bearded one proposed conversation.

"I suppose," I remarked, "that Scotland considers its greatest novelist, Walter Scott, as the greatest Scotchman, too."

"Gracious, no," rumbled the old gentleman. "Bobby Burns," pointing to another statue, "is much greater. The greatest Scotchman by far. He drank like a devil but wrote like an angel."

MAN, 73, BEATEN AND ROBBED

Set upon in the doorway of Emmanuel House, at 11 Newcomb street, Roxbury, where he is sexton, James Campbell, 73, of 449 Dudley street, Roxbury, was clubbed so severely that doctors fear for his life. His name was placed on the danger list at City Hospital this morning.

Two men leaped at the aged sexton as he emerged from the door, according to the story he managed to stammer to police. One slugged him, and as he fell, the other began to kick him.

Campbell was robbed of a watch, valued at $50, and what little money he carried.

After receiving first aid treatment at City Hospital, he was sent home. However, when his son, James, learned the gravity of his condition, he took him back to the hospital. Further examination showed he had a fractured rib, contusions of the kidney, internal injuries and numerous cuts and bruises.

Deputy Police Superintendent Livingston blamed the attack on "rollers" who in the last few weeks have brought Bowery tactics to Boston.

Mt. Rushmore Text Entries Sifted by Judges

Further elimination of entries in the Mount Rushmore national memorial inscription competition sponsored by the Boston Evening American, Boston Sunday Advertiser and associated newspapers, was made at a meeting of the regional committee at the Parker House yesterday.

Contributions now remaining will be gone over carefully once more and then forwarded to Washington to be passed on with the other texts from all over the country. This final judging will be the tremendous task of the national committee, headed by President Roosevelt.

The date for the naming of the country-wide winner is set tentatively for July 4, but inasmuch as the President will act in his official capacity as a member of the board, it is impossible to state definitely just now that the day named will see the victor crowned.

The New England committee consists of Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, Professor Ruhl Bartlett, Brigadier General Charles H. Cole, Major Robert E. Green, Payson Smith, State Commissioner of Education; Professor Daniel H. Mareb, President of Boston University and Professor Robert E. Rogers of M. I. T.

Madge's Unqualified Accusation Brings a Sudden Outburst of Anger and Threats From Avis Arlen!

CHAPTER 68

WAS SHE cunning enough, I wondered, to know that if I destroyed this stamped and addressed letter, I would put it out of my own power ever to accuse her of taking it? I was not certain how far her rather limited mentality would take her, but I resolved once and for all to "settle" this girl, as my mother-in-law would put it. I extended the letter to her, with the back uppermost, and said slowly, significantly:

"It won't do, Avis."

She started as if I had flicked her with a whip.

"What — what do you mean," she faltered.

"Exactly what I say." I returned firmly. "I am sorry to talk in this way to you, Avis, but your falsehoods leave me no recourse."

AVIS THREATENS!

She sprang to her feet, her head thrown back, her eyes blazing in cleverly simulated anger. But I had not taught girls for years without learning something of their reactions to various stimuli, and I saw fear behind the anger in her eyes.

"Falsehoods, Mrs. Graham," she stormed. "Do you realize to whom it is that you are speaking? Oh! you shall pay dearly for this! I am the daughter of Philip Veritzen's best friend. Do you think he will permit me to be insulted like this? If you do not want your play to be stopped, you will take that back."

She was so silly, so futile, in her ridiculous threat, that I felt no anger. She was not worthy of that emotion. Only a contemptuous pity was mine as I looked at her steadily.

"You are either extremely ignorant, or you are trying to 'bluff' me, as you no doubt would put it," I said calmly. "But it is no use. Now, will you listen to me, or must I go to Mr. Veritzen with my knowledge of what you have done?"

"A POOR, FRIENDLESS GIRL"

"Do you thing that is honorable?" she asked me hotly. "I have come to you with a confession of what I have done, and thrown myself on your mercy. You wouldn't have known anything about it if I hadn't told you. I confided in you, and asked you to help me keep my carelessness from Uncle Phil, and now you are betraying that confidence! For shame, Mrs. Graham! I did not think any one could be so vile to a poor friendless girl, whose future may depend upon your action.

She took a sharp breath and hurried on before I could speak.

"I ought to have known better than to have confided in you. You always have hated me, ever since you found out that No-el's heart really belongs to me. Oh, I know Mary has played her cards well, and so have you! The poor boy did not have a chance between you. He is going to marry her, no doubt, but there is something between No-el and me — always will be something, that can never be explained."

MADGE'S ULTIMATUM

I looked at my wrist watch, as if I were utterly unmoved by her attack. And indeed I was, except for the impulse that one's fingers feel when watching an exceedingly naughty child in a tantrum —the impulse to administer a good switching.

"You have five minutes left to decide what you are going to do, or rather I have that time to decide whether I shall tell Mr. Veritzen the truth about this letter not this fairy tale which you have related to me. I cannot understand how you are so gullible as to believe for an instant that I would swallow such nonsense. Now if you are ready to tell me the truth, perhaps I can help you."

I made my voice as stern as possible, and she gulped back the words she evidently had meant to utter and looked at me.

HOW IT HAPPENED

"What do you mean by 'the truth?'" she said, trying still to be defiant, but failing miserably.

"I will tell you," I said, "for really, I do not believe you could tell a straight story if your life depended upon it. But I know these things as clearly as if I had seen you in the acts."

I bent to her, gazing at her steadily, while my forefinger checked off my indictment.

"This letter came to the offfice nearly a week ago. You saw my name upon the back and slipped it into your bag, because you wanted to find out anything you could about Noel. At your first opportunity you steamed the letter, opened it, read its contents, and sealed it again, planning to wait until after the wedding to put it back into the mail. But my telephone to Mr. Veritzen foiled yor scheme to keep him in ignorance of the wedding, and his prompt investigation gave you no chance to put it back. That is why you are here."

BID TO PARTNER'S MENTAL LEVEL -:- MAKE JELLY IN SMALL QUANTITY

Inference of Bids Often Missed

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

When two very fine players sit opposite each other as partners, the bidding gives them opportunity for the exchange of very fine inferences. When, however, one member of a partnership is notably weak and has a stronger player as a partner, the stronger player should adjust his bidding methods to the mental level of his partner. A bid that to an expert partner would indicate strength, by the inexpert player may be construed not as a show of strength but as an effort to get out of a bad contract.

This was illustrated by the hand below:

East, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ K J 10 2 ♡ A 6 ◇ 10 8 6 3 2 ♣ 10 6
♠ A 8 7 6 5 ♡ 8 4 3 ◇ — ♣ A Q 7 3 2	North West East South	♠ 9 3 ♡ J 5 2 ◇ A 9 7 5 4 ♣ K J
	♠ 4 ♡ K Q 10 9 7 ◇ K Q J ♣ 9 8 5 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	1 ♠	Double (1)
Pass (2)	Pass	4 ♠ (3)	Pass
2 ◇ (4)	Double	Pass (5)	Pass
Pass

(1) A very close Double, but tournament players, in games scored on the match point basis, are inclined to make hairline decisions in such situations.

(2) East a well content with the contract. After all, he holds adequate trump support plus an Ace and a King-Jack. The only reason he does not redouble is that he fears a run-out by his opponents.

(3) It is a close question with West, but probably the bid of two clubs is correct in view of his distribution.

(4) East forgot the mental level of his partner and reasoned that his bid of two dimonds was the practical equivalent of bidding two spades with the advantage that it gave his partner a little more information. He argued with himself that his partner could not possibly construe it as a rescue as then he would have made it immediately after the Double of one spade. However correct this reasoning if West had been an expert, it was entirely incorrect in this case.

(5) West entirely missed the inference his partner sought to convey, and so permitted the hand to be played in the worst possible contract.

The contract of two diamonds was defeated two tricks—200 points —whereas two spades can be made by careful play, since North and South can be held to their three heart tricks and two spade tricks. Two clubs, of course, would be an equally good contract. As a matter of fact, at other tables the contract of two spades was doubled and made. The correct line of play as regards the trumps is, of course, clearly indicated by North's Double, which, when the Dummy goes down, quite plainly shows the location of the trump honors.

Clothes for Vacation Hours Hit New Budget Lows

MISS LESLIE BLAKE, another young person prominent in society, models one of the freshest little dimities that ever deserved the adjective "adorable." Brilliant red and white peppermint stripes, and a good deal of interest in neck and waist detail distinguish it. From a Boston shop.

FIRE ENGINE red and marine blue are the two shades effectively blended in a tablecloth linen sports frock which will give you an aura of gaiety. Note the big pearl buttons, and the generous and amusing use of fringe. Miss Barbara Holdsworth, charming society girl, models the frock, which is from a Boston shop. Annice Brink explains all about this new fashion in her accompanying article. The color combination is one of the most popular of the new styles for summer. Miss Brink will he glad to give you more details of these two new frocks.

By Annice Brink

The buy-word for the summer vacationist is a "smart-buy," both from the practical and the aesthetic viewpoints.

No matter where you go, the simple act of just being in outdoorn and enjoying it, aside from the strenuous fun of tennis, swimming, hiking and what not, will probably take a good part of your time, and the clothes for these lazy days can be pretty as you please.

* * *

We have ferreted out two smart-buys for enchanting vacation hours: A tablecloth linen fringed from collar to hem button-on, with swagger pockets, which is modelled by Miss Barbara Holdsworth, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Holdsworth of "Highgate." The other is a striped dimity with impudent shoulder and sleeve ruffles, and detail worthy of a much higher-priced frock. It particularly suits the lively charm of Miss Leslie Blake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blake of "The Lilacs," in Dedham.

* * *

To prove they suit the practical viewpoint, both frocks are under ten dollars. If you would like to know where they are to be seen in Boston, phone Annice Brink, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Capture Sweet Tartness of Cherries Now, Making a Little at a Time

By Martha Lee

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast over Station WAAB.

IN JELLY MAKING, as well as in everything else, the old proverb, "Don't bite off more than you can chew," holds. If you want a jelly to be proud of, don't make too many glasses at a time. You'll get a much better jelly to begin with, and you won't find the jelly-making itself such a task. Instead of devoting a day to it, a short time in the afternoon will be enough.

Right now, cherry jelly is challenging you. The markets are overflowing with this delicious fruit that used to be made into jams, but never, never, our grandmothers tell us, into jelly. "The cherry hasn't enough pectin" they used to say.

So it hasn't. But, with the aid of bottled fruit pectin, the sweetness and pungency of the cherry can be captured in a clear red jelly to last for months after the fruit has disappeared from the market.

WILD CHERRY JELLY
CHOKECHERRY JELLY

3 cup (1½ lbs.) juice.
1 BOTTLE FRUIT PECTIN

To prepare juice, stem about 3 pounds fully ripe cherries. Add 3 cups water. Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 15 minutes. (For strong cherry pit flavor, add 4 tablespoons crushed pits during the simmering, or ¼ teaspoon almond extract before pouring.) Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 9 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

CHERRY JELLY

(Any kind except wild cherry or chokecherry)

3 cups (1½ lbs.) juice
6½ cups (3¼ lbs.) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, stem and crush 3 pounds fully ripe cherries. Do not pit. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. (For stronger cherry flavor, add ¼ teaspoon almond extract before pouring). Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

SOUR CHERRY AND RED RASPBERRY JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7½ cups (3½ lbs.) sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, stem and pit about 2¼ pounds fully ripe cherries; chop thoroughly or grind. Crush or grind about 1 quart fully ripe raspberries. Combine fruits.

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit, filling up the last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Pandora Tells You

DEAR PANDORA:

Several nights ago, my wife and I were guests at a very drinkity party in town. Because it's so long since I've done any drinking and it's been such a brief time since I was deeply worried about the seeming impossibility of getting a job, I took a few snifters too many.

Nothing disorderly, just a little too upsadaisy for a man of my years.

For one thing, I played the gallant to a certain girl who's been the heavy vamp in our set for years. As far as her allure is concerned, she's always been a lauch to me and, in fact, I started out in that mood the other night. However, according to my wife, I was soon running in high, outdistancing all the Charley-boys in no time. It was perfectly disgusting, she says, the way I carried on, complimenting this girl and making "a perfect ass" of myself.

Of course, you know how ridiculous a person can feel after giving himself up that way. But to have my wife continue to rub it in the way she does makes it doubly humiliating. I've so completely lost my equilibrium I don't know what tack to take with her. I'd like to regain my dignity, but how?

JOHN L. S., NEWTONVILLE.

DEAR JOHN:

Pretend it never happened. I usually don't counsel such deception, but in this particular instance, it seems to me the only tack to take with Mrs. John is to totally ignore this monstrous if harmless night in your life as if it never was. You'll be amazed and delighted at how completely you can erase these blots on your calendar by power of will. Of course, you must exercise caution and judgment or you'll erase yourself out of the S. menage altogether — and then what profit you your regained dignity?

PANDORA.

Bridal Buffet Supper

By Mrs. Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married on a Saturday evening at six o'clock at the home of our minister, in the presence of only the two immediate families. We would like to have what I would term a very informal reception after the ceremony for some of our friends and relatives. This reception is to be at the home of my sister, with whom I am making my home at present.

1. Would it be wrong to serve a buffet supper?

2. Is it necessary to have engraved invitations? I do not wish to have invitations printed. Would it be bad form to have my sister write personal notes to those friends and relatives we wish to have at our home? If this may be done, how could such a note be worded?

K.

1. It is the customary thing to serve a buffet supper at an informal reception such as yours is going to be. It is a very convenient and very delightful kind of service, and by all means plan to use it.

Tragedy Near in Household as Susan Threatens to Leave and Marry Young Sholes

CHAPTER XXIX

Allen glanced up at Susan again and smiled. The smile was more than Uncle Worthy could stand. He had always suspected John of laughing at him in secret, and the thought had maddened him. He was maddened now.

"You'll get out of this house! NOW! Tonight!" His whole body shook with rage and his words slid together as they always did when he had been having an overdose of bitters.

"That's all right with me, Mr. Broderick," said Allen quietly. "I was leaving tonight or tomorrow in any case—just as soon as Susan could get ready to go. If you'll be kind enough to let me pass—" The black wall parted and he came up to where Susan stood.

"I got the license today. The clerk in the bureau is a good friend of mine, and he let me have it even if you weren't there," he said, his arms around her. "I knew everything about you except the date of your birth and I guessed at that." He grinned. "We can be married tonight. Get your things together and I'll get mine."

Uncle Worthy came up the steps. Susan saw that one side of his face wore its dark flush, looking as if an east wind had cut it. She wondered, with some remote part of her mind, why only one side was flushed. The other was ghastly pale.

UP TO SUSAN

He took her by one shoulder with a hand that shook violently. "You're not going to leave this house tonight!"

He glared up at Allen with eyes that looked smaller than usual and bloodshot. "You hear what I'm telling her? She's not going to step one foot out of this house tonight!"

"That's for her to decide, isn't it?" Allen asked. There was infinite tenderness in his face as he looked down at Susan. "How about it, Susie? You're coming with me, aren't you?"

It was Aunt Edna who spoke then, her face shaking piteously, all her forcefulness gone from her. Standing at the foot of the steps she began to cry.

"Susan, what are you thinking of?" she sobbed into her handkerchief. "Even if you weren't engaged to poor Wallace you wouldn't think of sneaking out like this would you?—Lutie stick and I with my knee in such shape that I ought to be flat in my bed this minute! You can't run out of the house at a moment's notice like some common creature, to marry this fly-by-nighter that you hardly know!—He'd probably desert you in a week the way Lutie says his father deserted his mother!"

"As far as that goes it begins to look as if my father had deserted me, doesn't it?"

Lutie blew her nose and cleared her throat. "I'd leave my father out of this if I were you!" she said loftily. "The rest of us have certainly been goodness itself to you, all your life, and I think you owe it to us to think things over carefully before you throw away your chance to marry into one of the best families in this town." She broke down then and began to cry.

"That's gratitude!" she wound up. "That's gratitude for you!"

Susan lifted a blanched face to Allen. "I'd better stay tonight, at any rate," she said. "You can see for yourself that I can't leave now."

"If you don't leave now you probably never will," he answered. She felt his arms fall away from her. He turned and went upstairs to his room, and after a few seconds Susan went out to the kitchen filled now with the savory smell of the dinner cooking on the stove.

LEAVES HIS ADDRESS

Mechanically she went out to the little ice box room and took a head of lettuce and four tomatoes from the vegetator. She was holding the lettuce under the cold water faucet watching the leaves part under the spray when Allen came in. He laid a piece of paper, torn from a memorandum pad, on the sink beside Susan. An address and a telephone number were written upon it.

"This is where I'll be tonight," he said. "It's the boarding house where I lived before I came here. I'll be back in an hour or so for the rest of my things. I'm taking most of them now."

Susan's head jerked up and down in a nod. O

"You can call me up tomorrow and let me know what you want to do," he said. "I've told you what I want you to do . . . The rest is up to you."

Aunt Edna pushed open the swinging door of the kitchen and stood in the opening. Allen turned his head and saw her. Then he stooped and kissed Susan goodbye under her disapproving eyes.

She stood dead still for a second and then rushed down to the lower hall. "Uncle Worthy?" she called as she went. She knocked on his door but there was no answer, and after an instant she turned the knob and went in.

Her uncle was lying on the floor with his big head rolled to one side, his eyes closed and his face swollen and purple.

A. Susan dropped to her knees beside him. Aunt Edna and Lutie came down the hall. "What is it, Susan? What's happened?—Oh, my dear Lord!" It was Aunt Edna's voice and it rose like a scream as she saw Uncle Worthy's prostrate body. "Get the doctor. Get Doctor Kendall, Lutie. Don't stand there—get him." With one hand pressed to her swollen knee she knelt on the floor beside him.

"He must have struck his head on the corner of the desk as he fell," Susan said, holding her handkerchief to a dark mark on her uncle's temple. "It's bleeding." Aunt Edna looked up at the corner of the desk as if it could tell her what had happened and Susan's eyes followed hers.

A pink glass paper weight stood very near the edge of the desk top, and under it lay a large sheet of writing paper. Uncle Worthy had taken it from the box some time during the day for it had not been there that morning when she dusted the room. She saw that it was covered with circles and triangles and numbers, and all across it, from corner to corner, the word "bankrupt" had been scrawled three times . . . Bankrupt. Bankrupt. Bankrupt.

TOLD OF ILLNESS

It was 8 o'clock.

Dr. Kendall had come and somehow or other he and Susan had carried Uncle Worthy up stairs and put him into the four poster bed where he had slept all his life.

"How long will he be like this?" Lutie asked from her post at the foot of the bed.

Dr. Kendall did not know. "No one can answer that, Lutie. He may recover after a few days. But if he does I doubt that he'll ever be very well again."

"What caused the stroke, Doctor?" asked Aunt Edna, shivering so that her teeth chattered.

"Wrong kind of food and too much of it. Alcohol. Worry—mental strain. A sudden shock. Any of those things," the doctor replied. "I told him Christmas day that he was drinking far too much for a man of his age—of ANY age.

"A sudden shock," repeated Aunt Edna. "He'd had a GREAT shock to his nerves just before this happened. Susan—He had been trying to manage something for Susan—" She turned a look on Susan that said plainly as words, "You did this to him!" and rushed out of the room waving her hands in the air. From Lutie's bedroom, where she took refuge, came the sound of loud sobbing sobs.

"Tell her to go to bed in there and I'll give her something to make her sleep," Dr. Kendall said to Susan. "And you and Lutie had better take turns sitting here tonight to watch for any change for the worse. Telephone me if you need me."

"Oh, please don't ask me to sit up tonight," Lutie said to him quickly. "I've been half dead with a cold all day myself. That's why I'm not dressed, Doctor. But I'll keep the door of my room open and if Susan needs me she can call me. I waken at the slightest sound."

Easy Way to Remove Superfluous Hair

Latest Mechanical Method Keeps Skin Normal

By Juliet Shelby

SUPERFLUOUS hair, without question, is the most disturbing personal annoyance to the well-groomed woman. And this summer—with our extreme decollete in bathing suits and evening gowns and with hose so transparent that the slightest skin blemish is apparent—it has become most essential for every woman to keep her skin beautifully smooth and free of unpleasing hair growth.

Many women and girls have complained to me of the disagreeable odor of certain depilatories, while others have confessed that, although mechanical methods for removing hair have been effective, they were at the same time painful. For these and other reasons too many women neglect the problem of unsightly hair, much to their own loss of personal charm.

* * *

If you want to appear your loveliest at all times—on the beach, dancing or going about your daily demands—you must learn to keep yourself immaculately groomed. Just as you keep your finger nails manicured and your face creamed, so should you keep your skin softly feminine and pleasing to look at.

The simplest way of doing this is by using the latest mechanical method for removing hair—the method that has created such a rage. This method consists in rubbing the hair with a small device, when the skin is dry, in gentle, circular motions. Yet the hair quickly disappears, and the skin is left velvety smooth and white.

You may use it as frequently as you desire without harming your skin and its gentle action leaves the hair ends frayed and soft so you are not bothered with bristly stubs for days after! I suggest that when you use it, you practice on your arms and legs before attempting to remove hair from your face—if you have any to remove. And it is desirable to use a good lotion or cream after removing the hair, to prevent any slight irritation of the skin.

* * *

Those who created this hair-getting miracle claim that it is the "simple, pleasant, effective and economical answer for every woman." And—you can take it from me—it is! I wonder why some one didn't think about it years before this.

Telephone to Juliet Shelby, Liberty 4000, if you wish to learn the name of this hair remover and where you can purchase it. If you prefer writing for this information, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Follow the advice Raquel Torres gives in the accompanying article and the result should be the same as her beautiful arms show in this picture.

Toning Lotion Checks Oily Skin

Question: Will you please advise me as to how I can cure the oily condition of my nose? The powder on my nose always becomes "caked" and patchy. Please help me.

C. R., East Milton.

Answer: An oily nose is usually due to an improper functioning of the glands which cause a relaxed pore condition. You can correct this by persistent care. Use a liquid cleanser on your nose and follow with an astringent tonic. You can use cream on the rest of your face but not on your nose. Use the tonic frequently. Use cold water when convenient and try a liquid powder foundation instead of a foundation cream or lotion.

Superfluous Hair

Question: Can you tell me why superfluous hair appears on the face? What measures can be taken to cure this condition?

H. F. Newton.

Answer: The "why" of superfluous hair has not yet been solved. It can be removed by electrolysis, which operation is usually successful. There are various depilatories on the market which remove the hair but do not destroy the roots of the hair.

Another way to deal with it is bleaching. This doesn't, of course, destroy the roots but it deadens the growth and lightens the color so it is much less noticeable. Many find this method quite satisfactory; use one-half teaspoonful ammonia to three tablespoonfuls of peroxide. It should be mixed fresh every day. Apply as often as convenient. If your skin is dry, use a little cream first.

No. 13 Wins Man Somerville Job

Harry F. Sears, vice-headmaster of the Somerville High school, chosen headmaster owes his position to the "unlucky" number "13."

He was chosen headmaster after 12 deadlocked ballots by the school board. The 13th ballot gave him the job. In the other ballots, Francis A. Ryan, former master of the Knapp school was runner-up.

THOUSANDS IN HARVARD FIGHT OF CONFETTI

Stormy weather or sunshine, Harvard's class day show will go on at the Stadium this afternoon and thousands are expected to participate in the traditional confetti throwing battle of the day.

There will be one conspicuous absence, however. President James Bryant Conant will be in New Haven to receive an honorary degree from Yale. He had accepted the Eli invitation before the class day committee changed their date from yesterday to today.

In honor of the first class day since repeal, the class of '31 has promised an appearance with its members garbed in the correct attire of the bartenders union, white coats, white aprons and all.

The "Naughty-Niners," who have been getting most of the attention anyhow are very secretive about a series of "stunts" they are due to uncover.

Class Day's formal program begins with luncheons at many of the reunion houses in Memorial Drive.

John B. White, of Thomasville, Ga., class orator, will deliver the famed "Ivy Oration" in the center of the usual huddle that attends this humorous offering.

In the evening there will be a concert by the Instrumental and Glee Clubs in the House triangle bounded by Eliot, Kirkland, Winthrop and Lowell Houses and the Athletic Building.

This concert will be followed by dancing until midnight in the various houses.

SENATOR'S KIN WEDS MACK, JR

By Associated Press

Washington, June 20—Miss Susan Sheppard, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard of Texas, and Cornelius McGillicuddy, Jr., son of Connie Mack, the famous baseball manager, were married today at the Sheppard home here.

They planned to motor to Canada on their honeymoon.

May Queen Is June Bride

The home of Senator Sheppard, Texas, in Washington, was the scene of the wedding today of his daughter, Susan, and Cornelius McGillicuddy, Jr., son of the venerable "Connie Mack," manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. The romance started on the campus of Duke University, where they both were honor students and star athletes. Last month the bride was chosen May Queen at a college festival. new car, their bodies riddled with bullets, in the back, in the neck, in the head. Long strips of adhesive tape, many yards of it, had been used to seal their eyes and mouths tightly. Their hands and legs were bound.

The curious thing is that these and other criminals found dead seem to have made no real effort to escape their doom, once the killers had "the drop" on them.

They seem to have submitted to the taping of eyes, mouths and the rest of it, although knowing that this was a prelude to death.

Such crimes among criminals are so common that many newspapers devote only a few lines to them. They might devote more, for a nation in which crime earns and spends an income greater than that of the national government, with no effective protest anywhere, is a nation in a bad condition.

"Old Bill," dead in London, was a carrier pigeon. He carried messages during the first year of the big war from British army and air forces in France and Belgium back to London, and lost a leg. Brought back to England by an invalid soldier, he enjoyed life for many years, and now has laudatory "obituary notices" in English papers.

"Old Bill" flew back and forth in the big war and lost a leg without ever knowing WHY he was flying or why he had to lose that leg.

But, "Old Bill" was no more ignorant than a majority of the soldiers over whose heads he flew on errands that he did not understand.

France worries about numerous forest fires, little rain has fallen, the wheat crop is short many millions of bushels.

Vineyards and the precious wine crop are not in danger yet, but will be unless rain falls soon. The quality of the wine depends on sunshine and rain combined, the quantity of rain especially.

If you buy Chateau Lafitte, the highest grade Bordeaux, direct from the Rothschilds, who own the vineyard, their agent writes before the grapes are picked, letting you know at what price per barrique, of about 300 bottles, the year's vintage is held. But you cannot be sure until ten years later. Or even twenty years later, as in the case of the marvellous crop of 1848, just how good the wine will be.

London also worries about heat and shortage of water, and strange things happen. Dignified British policemen directed traffic in their shirtsleeves, and Lord Merrivale, austere British judge, unable to stand the heat, took off his sheepskin wig in court, and worked in his own natural hair, or the lack of it.

A new crime "racket" displays ingenuity worthy of a better cause. According to police, Dominick Zerboni, reputable junk dealer of New York, was standing by when a shot was heard and Carmelo Scudderi fell to the ground, his chest stained with gore. Terrible for Zerboni was the thought of being mixed up in a murder case. He paid $1500 on the assurance that he would not be dragged into it and $500 more to pay for the funeral of the "unfortunate dead man."

Later he saw the same "dead man" in a subway train. The noise had been made by a blank cartridge, and the crimson stain on the "dead man's" chest was tomato ketchup. This new "racket," police say, has yielded to its inventors $100,000 profit already.

Congratulations to Senator Capper of Kansas, who killed an effort to put through the Senate a bill that would have legalized horseracing and concomitant gambling in the District of Columbia. There are plenty of such gambling resorts within easy reach of Washington. It is not necessary to put one close to the United States Treasury for the convenience of book-makers and touts, or race-track "gentlemen," anxious to pump the salaries of civil service employes into their own pockets.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have a new granddaughter only six weeks old, and thought they would like to see her before the President starts on his cruise to Hawaii. The baby is in Fort Worth, Texas, fully 1500 miles from Washington but Father Elliott Roosevelt and his wife, who own the baby, want the distinguished grandfather to see it. So the six weeks old Roosevelt will fly, unless plans change, the 1500 miles to Washington.

That is something that would surprise her distinguished great uncle, Theodore Roosevelt, who liked strange things.

'HANFY' INVITED TO WEDDING OF ASTOR

(Copyright, 1934, by International News Service.)

Dr. Ernst Franz Sedgwick Hanfstaengl, known as "Hanfy" to his Harvard class of 1909, will attend the wedding of Ellen Tuck French to John Jacob Astor, 3d, at Newport, on June 30.

Dr. Hanfstaengl received an invitation in an informal note from Francis O. French, father of the bride-to-be, and announced today he would accept.

The letter sent Dr. Hanfstaengl by French read, in part, as follows:

"Hanfstaengl: I heard you were in town—you probably remember me from the Sphinx Club, 1912, Harvard.

"If you are going to be in America as long a period as June 30, would like to send you an invitation to my daughter's wedding, who is going to marry Mr. Astor in Newport, June 30.

"Please let me know."

(Signed) Francis O. French, 1913 (Harvard).

The Nazi press official was just "rarin to go" on today's program that was to climax with the traditional class day confetti battle at Harvard stadium.

Of today's activities "Hanfy" promised:

"I'm going to throw confetti, all right. Lots of confetti."

Sporting men called to mind the opening of the Rockingham races at Salem, N. H., next week. Still others guessed that he might try to elude guards and see the trial of Norma Brighton Millen.

But they were careful not to let their guesses fall on the ear of the country's greatest gate-crasher.

Dear Mr. Crosby:—

When you changed to Old Gold cigarettes a few months ago, it was fact, not fancy, that gave your throat a thrill!

Many tests have established Old Gold's superior smoothness. A group of New York throat specialists, for instance, tested several brands and found Old Golds appreciably cooler and easier on the throat tissue.

"No artificial flavoring" . . . that's one reason. But the character of the tobacco . . . that's the BIG reason. It's picked from the heart of the stalk, where Nature grows her mildest and coolest-burning leaf.

That's why you can smoke Old Golds as freely as you please . . . without the slightest throat irritation.

Sincerely,

No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

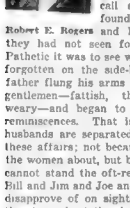
MRS. BURGESS SHOWS JUDGE SCAR

This Is Life
by
ROBERT E. ROGERS



Robert E. Rogers

It's a great life—this business of class reunioning—if you don't weaken. Those who expected an all-night whoopee in the Yard need not have feared. By 2 a. m. or thereabouts everybody was sleeping the sleep of exhaustion. Many of them were still sleeping it when the trumpets sounded for breakfast in the Harvard Union and Charlie Watkins rolled up his motorcade of busses champing at the bit to be off to Princemere and other stops on the North Shore.

Most of them had driven hard all day Monday, had dumped themselves and their luggage in dormitory rooms, had registered in the midst of what newspaper men always call a "milling throng," had found the bar and sampled it, and had met dozens of men they had not seen for quarter of a century. Pathetic it was to see wife and children standing forgotten on the side-lines while husband and father flung his arms round strange and aging gentlemen—fattish, thinnish, baldish, world weary—and began to babble incomprehensible reminiscences. That is really why wives and husbands are separated as much as possible at these affairs; not because the men do not want the women about, but because the women simply cannot stand the oft-repeated strain of meeting Bill and Jim and Joe and Alf, most of whom they disapprove of on sight, and hearing once more the story about the chapel belfry and the president's cow. But that was at Siwash! We never did such things at Harvard, at least not while Charles W. Eliot was consul.

Then a very impressive memorial service to our 106 dead, with the names read and the bell tolled. By a curious coincidence—or was it a coincidence?—the first stroke came as Francis "Hooks" Burr's name was read—captain of the victorious 1908 football team and first marshal of the class. Then the president's reception, with Dr. Conant receiving within doors and Hanfstaengl out of doors, Hanfy being very much on his good behavior and acting as if there were no such thing in the world as dozens of plain clothes men and reporters and cameramen, all decked out in class regalia dodging his footsteps. My prophecy is that there will be no trouble. If there is, it will certainly not be of Hanfy's making

Then a crowded but fine dinner at the Union, following which the crowd trooped down to the magnificent auditorium of the new Radcliffe school around the corner to a mirthful variety show with home talent. Fritiz Bacon impersonated Baheff in broken Parisian and an occasional English word. The hits of the show were the Wives in 1908 costumes, showing the youngsters how clothes should be worn and manners demonstrated in the gracious days "ocfoah de war." They were all darlings—and knew it.

• • •

But the Naughty Nineties, their daughters, got the noisy suffrages of the crowd by two brisk, snappy dances in the modern manner, trained to a point by a young man named Dunkle, who turned amateurs into professionals in three weeks. The rest of the program was too numerous to mention. There was a skit about Mr. Naughty-nine and his secretary which needed only a dash of formaldehyde to be a hit in Hollywood; some piano playing by Madame Elsa Hemenway of radio fame, and some more ivory tickling by Major Jack Warner, head of the New York state police and son-in-law to Al Smith, who made every one feel weepy and thirsty with the "Liebestod."

Then dancing and good cheer till 2 a. m.

Tuesday was a disappointment. The rain drove us home by 3 o'clock, but before that there had been time for some baseball and tennis and golf and swimming at various choice spots on the North Shore and luncheon at Princemere, opened for the occasion by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Prince in memory of his son, Morton Prince, a member of the class, who was killed in France. At one end of the vast living room was a portrait by Benson, and a marble bust banked with flowers, of the young man as he looked only a few years after we knew him. And upstairs was his study as he had left it, with his law books ready for use, and his bedroom untouched

The reuniuning Tuesday had perforce to be done indoors about the refreshment tables and lunch layout. Hanfstaengl inconspicuous, Teddy Roosevelt not visible. High spot, in a withdrawn corner, earnest debate between Hiram V. Kaltenborn, Liberal, and E. Sohier Welch, Tory, on the advisability of the existing regimes in Germany, Russia and Italy. Kaltenborn, who "edits the news," sails tomorrow for a summer in Russia as leader and tutor of a large organization of business men who want to make up their minds for themselves about the Soviet state.

Back to Cambridge in the pouring rain with a few hours to spare before the men's and women's dinners. My guess is that the men at least will put in the time trying to catch up on their sleep.

At 46 or 47 or 48 we do not take punishment, particularly the punishment of unremitting merry-making and good cheer, as well as once we did. Was it not Lord Palmerston who said, "Life would be endurable if it were not for its pleasures." Many a father—or grandfather—in the class undoubtedly feels the same way today. Or will, at least, tomorrow.

COLE LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN FOR GOVERNOR

Curley Workers Speed Registration of Voters

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

General Charles H Cole, endorsed for governor by the Democratic convention, will fire the opening gun in his campaign for nomination in the September primary tonight in Southbridge.

Cole, with Chairman Joseph A Maynard of the state committee, will speak before the Worcester Democratic County League.

That the full machinery of the state, county, city and town organizations will be placed behind Cole and the rest of the state ticket endorsed in Worcester was promised today by Chairman Maynard.

"We have a pretty good organization throughout the state, much better than a lot of people suppose," Maynard declared. "We are organized in 353 out of 356 cities and towns. We are better prepared for this campaign than we have been in years. In the three towns not organized, there are but a total of 218 votes all told."

Tonight's appearance will be the first for General Cole since his nomination at Worcester.

Maynard said he planned to get the various organizations started on registration work about July 1.

"We will conduct an intensive state-wide registration drive," he said. "We will have the biggest registration in the history of the party."

The former Mayor Curley actively campaigning against Cole, Maynard's prediction on a high registration mark seems likely to be fulfilled. Especially will this be true in Boston, it is expected, where the rival Democratic forces will stretch every nerve to get their supporters on the voting list

Now that the convention is ended, a strong sentiment is growing that the state committee should not delay in completing organization work by an election of a woman to succeed Miss Mary Ward as national committeewoman.

The election was put off until after the convention by the state committee at its recent meeting.

Among those mentioned for this position are Mrs. John J. Horgan of Worcester, Miss Mildred C. Keane of Dorchester, Mrs. Richard M. Russell of Cambridge and Mrs. Louis McHowes of Fall River.

Love Lyrics Read in Divorce Battle

MRS. PASHER

MRS. BURGESS

Mrs. Hazel Irene Van Cannell Burgess, who is suing Clifford T. Burgess, Boston and Cape Cod aviator, for divorce, listened to final arguments in her case in Suffolk Probate Court today. Just before resting her case she displayed to Judge Poland a scar on her forehead. Hundreds of ardent love letters in poetic prose and romantic verse were read during the trial. Her sister, Mrs. Geraldine Pasher, testified regarding certain acts of Burgess. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

SEA GIVES UP EVERETT BODY

Weighted and dropped in the sea off Boston lightship last Sunday because a yachtsman decided he could not get it ashore, the body of Joseph D Rogers, 38, of 11 Oak terrace, Everett, today was recovered by coast guards in Gloucester harbor. Yesterday's storm apparently had sent the body shoreward.

Rogers was drowned three months ago with Edmund Vevilacque, 18, of 40 Glendale avenue, Everett, while fishing from a canoe that upset in a squall off Swampscott. Vevilacque's body was recovered soon after the squall.

Rogers body was sighted Sunday, three miles east of Boston Light by Kenneth Miller of 18 Humphries street, Swampscott, from his yacht. He took it to the lightship, whose crew refused to accept it for sanitary reasons.

Believing it impossible to get it ashore intact, Miller removed a bit of the clothing, a house key and rosary beads for identification, then weighted the body and dropped it.

Beads, key and cloth were identified by Rogers' widow and brother Frank, Jr. They identified the body today at Gloucester morgue

$2800 Swindle Is Bared

The lure of easy money proved too much today for Charles Kenick, 35, an Exeter (N. H.) tailor. The result was his appearance in Lynn police headquarters with a story of being swindled out of $2,800 of his savings.

Kenick told police a gibb-talking stranger, who had visited his shop several times, said he would double any amount Kenick wanted to invest. Kenick said he withdrew $1,300 from a Lawrence bank and $1,500 more in Salem.

Reaching Lynn, the stranger suggested Kenick purchase a suitcase He entered a shop and, when he returned, the stranger and money were gone

World Not Going to Dogs, Radcliffe Class Told

Radcliffe College today conferred 225 degrees—170 A. B's, 45 A M's, and 10 Ph. D's—at annual commencement exercises in Sanders Theatre. The candidates were presented by Acting Dean Frances Ruml Jordan, and the degrees awarded by President Ada L. Comstock.

Chancellor Samuel P. Capen, of Buffalo University, in his address to the seniors, reminded them that their whole college career had been passed in a period of extraordinary instability.

"If you think I am mistaken, ask yourselves how Russia, and Fascist Italy and Germany, and democratic Britain and France and America are going to keep their diverse systems of social organization from interacting violently in the same contracting world," he said.

"The prospect, however, should not be a terrifying one, but rather exciting and fascinating, even though some of the changes may hurt, he went on. The world is not going to the dogs, but some people are—those who lack the moral stamina and the mental flexibility to meet the change with courage."

Following the Commencement exercises, the Governing Board of the College was entertained by President Comstock at luncheon in Greenleaf House. In the afternoon, a memorial service was held in Longfellow House for the late LeBaron Russell Briggs, presidene of Radcliffe from 1902 to 1923.

Louise S. Graham, of West Roxbury vice-president of Radcliffe ag Student Government Association was awarded the Copia a Jonathan Fay scholarship for the graduate who has given evidence of the greatest promise. The Charles Eliot Norton fellowship of $1200 went to Elizabeth Dow, of Portland, Me., for a year's work in the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, and the Caroline L Wilby prize, amongst others, was given to Catherine E. Boyd of Yarmouth, N. S.

Cole, Harriman Face Board Ouster

Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham, member of the Senate ways and means committee today threatened to file an order calling for the resignations of General Charles H. Cole and Henry I. Harriman as trustees of the Boston Elevated road

Nicholson's outburst came while H. Ware Barnum was explaining a bill which would authorize the Boston Metropolitan District to take over the refunding of Elevated bonds to the amount of $10,081,000 prior to July 1, 1935.

The Wareham man then referred to the outside activities of Harriman and Cole

AVIATOR'S WIFE DENIES KISSES AT PARTING

Scharton in Argument Claims Woman Was Humiliated

"Did you kiss him or did you not?"

"I did not."

With eyes flashing, Mrs Hazel Irene Van Cannell Burgess denied in Suffolk divorce court today that she parted from her aviator husband with combined rage and kissing as her petition for divorce from Clifford T. Burgess drew near decision.

Mrs Burgess was called for rebuttal to deny much of the testimony given by her husband in his defense yesterday.

At one point in her testimony Judge George M. Poland halted the hearing long enough for Mrs Burgess to remove her hat and exhibit to him a scar that extended from the top of her forehead to the left eyebrow

MOTHER HAD LETTER

Then came her quiz by her counsel, Attorney Van Courtland Lawrence, and cross-examination by her husband's counsel, Attorney William R. Scharton

Scharton dwelt at length on a purported telephone call in which Mrs. Burgess had testified her husband had asked forgiveness for beating her

He finally drew an admission that, despite the absence of a telephone at her mother's apartment in Cleveland, the family had access to a phone in another apartment.

Burgess also was recalled to the stand by order of Judge Poland after a bench conference. Attorney Lawrence drew from him an admission that one of the ardent letters of Mrs. Burgess to him had been kept in custody by his mother —the others by him.

SCHARTON ARGUES

In his closing argument, Attorney Scharton charged that Mrs. Burgess was "a woman spurred by ambition who wanted to cut all knots to get free."

Again he charged that Mrs. Burgess was humiliated because her husband told Royal A. Brown, Marshfield author, to stop seeing her.

"She left him, not because of blows she said he struck her in 1933, not because of jewelry she said he tore off her hands in 1932, but because she was humiliated because he went to Royal A. Brown," Scharton charged.

"His reputation should not be destroyed by a woman who is spurred by ambition and wants to cut all knots to get free,' he concluded.

3-Yr. Wedding Secret Out

A Somerville young woman today delivered a telling blow at the old saying "a woman cannot keep a secret."

She was revealed as the wife of Gerald F. Quinlan, of Hyde Park avenue, Jamaica Plain. She is the former Miss Mary E. Mayall, of Partridge avenue, Somerville

The couple were married in St Francis Xavier church, Nashua, N. H April 30, 1931 Since that time both have lived at their own homes and have kept their marriage a secret.

It was revealed at a shower at the young woman's home during which it was intimated she would soon become Quinlan a bride. He arrived a short time later and introduced her as his wife of more than three years.

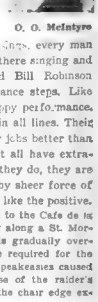
O. O. McIntyre
NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

New York, June 20—No entertainer seems to retain the hold on typically Broadway crowds as Harry Richman. He goes inland time after time for long stays and returns for the same brand of enthusiasm. Other performers, after long lapses, have to re-establish themselves with press agent buildups.

But Broadway seems always ready for Richman. He puts over a song in a masculine way in the same fashion that made Nora Bayes so lasungly popular. His songs taunt with a contagious energy. Each one hallooo "Boys, this will be my greatest triumph!" Egotism riding rough-shod.



O. O. McIntyre

Richman appeals to the minstrel in every heart. When he sings, every man in the audience is mentally out there singing and strutting. Eddie Leonard and Bill Robinson achieve the same effect with dance steps. Like Richman, they never give a sloppy performance.

There are Harry Richmans in all lines. Their secret is simple—they love their jobs better than anything else in the world. Not all have extraordinary talents. But whatever they do, they are likely to sweep us off our feet by sheer force of fervor. So many of us negatives like the positive.

New York's nearest approach to the Cafe de la Paix is the clutter of tables flung along a St. Moritz corner sidewalk. The town is gradually overcoming its shudder at the leisure required for the correct slow sipping of drinks. Speakeasies caused everybody to bolt libation in case of the raider's knock. Even now they still sit on the chair edge expectantly.

• • •

Joe Zelli is making a third effort to transfer a so-called "Parisian atmosphere" to the local scene. Zelli has been wise in his way of appealing to finishers on the last lap of a night out. His rue Fontaine harum-scarum was long a dawn stop in the Montmartre hoop-la. But that was before a settled sedateness came to cafes in Paris and elsewhere and Zelli's languished and died. The world, it would seem, has put on brakes and the Zellis must catch the muted tempo, one fears, to survive.

I ran into a small bit fool of the movie shorts today. He is a larrikin whose job is to guffaw at his own cluofooted puns and continually speak out of turn. To me he has always been somewhat a nuisance. In real life he is quiet, self effacing and a devout disciple of Walt Whitman. Indeed, the only comedian I recall, as funny off as on, is Chaplin.

• • •

The greatest disappointment to fans, I imagine, in close-up, was the late Ring Lardner. He convulsed the world with his humor, yet not even among such intimates as Grantland Rice, Harold Ross, Percy Hammond and Jack Wheeler, was he very laugh-provoking. Now and then some tight-lipped drollery might escape in sudden blurt. But as a rule he was grum, owlish, abrupt. He liked to listen with ears so capably attuned to the great American comedy, but conversation had to be dragged from him, a few syllables at a time. Lardner, incidentally, left $190,000 in insurance.

• • •

Restaurants interest me chiefly as a looker-on. A rabbity little man with a round walnut face toddled in with two heavy dowagers, all in evening dress, at the cream colored Colony. He ordered in aside dry Martinis all around and a bottle of Chablis. He was going to have himself a time. But his companions were teetotalers and passed the drinks to him. And you should have seen him as they hurried to the theater. Was he crocked!

• • •

Lyoline—which sounds like a new sunburn cure—is the latest couturiere to catch the Paris fancy. She is a dark-eyed Russian whose hobby is singing pre-revolutionary madrigals to the thrumming of a guitar. Her recent arrival in New York is indicative of the new style trail. Paris dress makers now come to New York and Hollywood for ideas and patronage. For decades it was the other way around. So you won't pay!

I stopped with Courtney Cooper to watch scrub nines cross bats on a sunny Central Park meadow this afternoon. And in a flash of juvenile exuberance, when a fly popped my way, I tried to pleat myself under it. It popped two feet away from outstretched hands. The young catcher whose path I had evidently blocked sneered: "Atta athlete!"

Phone in News Tips to the Boston American and Advertiser — Win $100 Weekly in Prizes

Do you want to make some money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser are presenting the opportunity. Every week a total of $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News Tip Editor at Liberty 4000. And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an important meeting is scheduled for a certain date, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger, that a celebrity is coming to town? That's a news tip. There will be given $50 weekly for the best first exclusive news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next best and $1 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. This offer is now in effect. Remember that SPEED is the watchword. First to the telephone wins the award. News tips mean money.

Plans Long Jaunt

Merian C. Cooper, former RKO Radio production chief who gave up his post to devote his time to two spectacular pictures each year, is planning an 8000-mile journey in the interest of film authenticity.

Cooper is going to Pompeii, one of the famous pair of buried cities in Italy, to gather correct background and material for the production of his biggest picture, "Last Days of Pompeii," which will be his first for RKO Radio's 1934-1935 season.

French Scent Drouth Plot

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There ain't any rain in England, there ain't any rain in France and there ain't any rain in America.

It looks like a plot. France will probably discover spies flying around sprinkling talcum powder on the clouds.

England always makes the best of it. What she saves on umbrellas, she will spend on the navy.

We are having a marine conference with London right now. The big question is, will England borrow more money to build new boats, or will she pay back a little so we can build one.

New First Run Films Fill the Bills

By HARRIS MORGAN

Boston's first-run picture houses offer a varied incoming array of new films, beginning tomorrow with "Countess of Monte Cristo" and "Whirlpool" as a double-feature program at the RKO Boston.

Paul Lukas and Fay Wray are featured in "Countess of Monte Cristo," which concerns a high-spirited extra girl on a movie lot who decides to make a dramatic and amusing exit to the world outside the studio. Mr. Lukas plays a "gentleman-crook." Jean Arthur and Jack Holt are featured in "Whirlpool."

Marion Davies

Marion Davies and Gary Cooper appear for the first time opposite each other in "Operator 13," the Robert W. Chambers romance of the Civil War, which comes to Loew's State Friday. At the Metropolitan, also on Friday, will be shown "Shoot the Works," a film adaptation of the stage-play "The Great Magoo," by Ben Hecht and Gene Fowler.

The tragic Dorothy Dell, who was killed ten days ago in an automobile accident, Jack Oakie, and Ben Bernie and his orchestra appear in "Shoot the Works." Loew's Orpheum will screen on the same day, "Born to Be Bad," a new drama with Loretta Young, Cary Grant and young Jackie Kelk in the leading roles. Keith's Memorial Theatre will begin its new week Saturday with Ann Harding and John Boles co-featured in "The Life of Vergie Winters." Symphonic Sketch Given First Performance at Pops

By MOSES SMITH

The Pops program of last night was dignified by a first performance. The composer was Theodore Cella, who, still a relatively young man, played some years ago in the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The composition was a symphonic sketch called "The Lido."

Obviously the work was intended to suggest something of the atmosphere of the famous Mediterranean resort. Whether or not it did may have been decided differently by various members of the large audience. But the music is frankly melodious, not over-serious, and of robust good spirits on the whole. It is also sentimental, leaning heavily on Puccini and occasionally on the Strauss of the tone-poems in the leap of the melodic outline and the style of orchestration. Conducted in what seemed a competent performance by the composer, the new composition was cordially received by last night's audience, and is likely to please subsequent Pops audiences.

Mr. Fiedler, conducting the balance of the program, had as his principal number the Tchaikovsky Variations on a Rococo Theme, rarely heard here nowadays, and last played at a Boston Symphony concert I believe in Karl Muck's day. In any event, the Tchaikovsky of the Variations is suave and surprisingly, a stylist, but he has not the emotional depth of the Tchaikovsky of the symphonies and orchestral fantasias. But the Variations furnish a convenient "vehicle" for a solo 'cellist, who last night was Jacobus Langendoen of the Orchestra, and whose able performance under trying conditions of humidity was warmly applauded

In unusual fettle Mr. Fiedler led vigorous and musical performances of other compositions including the Mendelssohn overture "Fingal's Cave," and the "Peer Gynt" suite of Grieg. The last movement of the latter work was given an especialy exciting rendering.

Baseball Swings Back To Player-Manager
Harris' Ill Luck
Collins Complains; Jewish Champions Rule Boxing Roost

By AUSTEN LAKE

APPOINTMENT of Harold "Pie" Traynor, who learned his baseball alphabet as an urchin in that part of Somerville known as Polly Swamp, to manage the Pittsburgh Pirates, throws the balance heavily on the side of the player-manager in the National League

Austen Lake

It was not so long ago—1930—that the league contained many a playing boss, and the roster of pilots included McGraw (Giants), McKechnie (Braves), McCarthy (Cubs), Robinson (Brooklyn), Street (Cardinals), Shotten (Phillies), Howley (Cincinnati), Bush (Pittsburgh).

And now there are only two bench managers left in the National, our own William McKechnie and Casey Stengel in Brooklyn. The others, Grimm (Cubs), Frisch (Cardinals), Terry (Giants), Wilson (Phillies), Farrell (Cincinnati), Traynor (Pirates), are athletes.

* * *

THE FACT IS that Traynor could have had the management of the Pirates at any time during the last four years and was pressed many times to take charge of the team. But "Pie" refused because he feared the responsibility would injure his work in the field.

There is no doubt Frank Frisch has slumped as a performer since taking over the reins. He admitted as much to me when he was last in Boston. And Charley Grimm and Jimmy Wilson have sloughed off, too. About the only player who seems to go the even tenor of his way, since becoming a manager, is Bill Terry.

When Mickey Cochrane had his Detroit Tigers here last week, he confessed the strain of thinking for his team had marred his play.

"To get results a fellow has to concentrate on his batting," he said, a bit ruefully, "I'm trying to think of a dozen things at once now, and its taken a big nick out of my hitting."

The odd thing is that Cochrane always hit hard and long when he visited Navin Field, Detroit, as a member of the Athletics. And now he says he cannot hit the size of his collar in the park

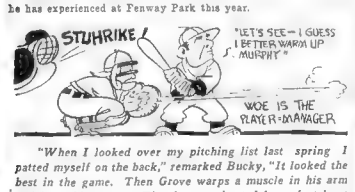
Harris Gets a Taste of Red Sox Luck

BUCKY HARRIS of the Red Sox said today that in 10 years of managing he has never run into such a streak of misfortune as he has experienced at Fenway Park this year.



"When I looked over my pitching list last spring I patted myself on the back," remarked Bucky, "It looked the best in the game. Then Grove warps a muscle in his arm and loses his power. That is an estimated loss of at least 10 games during the season.

"Then Pipgras retires for the season with a locked elbow. That's at least eight games more. And for the last month Walberg has nursed an infected finger. That cost us three or four games."

Thus, as Bucky figures, these three misfortunes will put the club back more than 20 games in the course of the season.

* * *

EDDIE COLLINS was bleating today about the generosity of the Red Sox pitchers in giving bases on balls.

"If anything burns me up," snorted Eddie, "It's to sit in that roof roost of mine and watch the pitchers pass six, seven and eight men a game."

Instead of becoming philosophical about sitting on the outer fringe of the game, Eddie has, if anything, become more fidgety.

"The thing I miss," said he, "Is in not being able to yell at the opposing players. I sit up there thinking the most beautiful wise cracks that I'd love to try out. But all I can do is nibble my cuffs. Sometimes I feel, if I only had a whistle in my hat I'd sound like a peanut roaster."

* * *

JEWISH FIGHTERS seem to have a corner on the championship market, with Max Baer in the heavyweight division, Barney Ross (Bernard Rosofsky), in the lightweight and welter, and Maxie Rosenbloom in the lightheavyweight.

Baer is the first Hebrew heavyweight champion since Daniel Mendoza reigned in the 1790's. Mendoza weighed only 158 pounds, yet beat all of England's best heavyweights.

In the intervening years, until Baer, only one Hebrew heavyweight has made any great progress. That was Joe Choynski, who fought at 178 and once knocked out Jack Johnson.

* * *

THERE ARE FEW women professional golfers in the world, so that Helen Hicks, former national champion, has small precedent for giving up her amateur status. Joyce Wethered, the Englishwoman, has been a successful pro for some years.

Yet women golfers prefer to take lessons from men professionals, for reason of prejudice against their own sex. Even Miss Hicks is not entering the competitive field and is professionalizing herself as a saleswoman for a sporting goods firm, with expectations of an income of $25,000 a year.

Several years ago Mary K. Browne, a first flight player in national tennis and golf, joined C. C. Pyle's tennis tourists for cash money. And oddly, though she was ruled out of further amateur tennis play, her status in golf remained unsullied, and she was permitted to play in amateur tournaments.

H-Y DIAMOND SERIES GETS UNDER WAY

While the Old Guard makes [illegible] ready to [illegible] its way into Sisters Field in City Day drill parade formations Harvard and Yale launch the opening of the annual two-games baseball series at 3.30 this afternoon

The Class of 1884, 50 years out, leads the colorful procession with marches in column of fours from the exercises and confetti battle in the Stadium. They make no turn of the bases, their cheers resounding far over the confines of the Charles, adding a bright touch to the scene second not even to the importance of the diamond rivalry between these two "Big Three" colleges.

The game itself culminates a [illegible] that [illegible] Both teams have put [illegible]

Yet the occasion looms as much as though a world championship hangs in the balance for the Harvards like to beat the Yale more than anything else in the sports category and the Yales get equally as much pleasure from knocking off the Harvards.

SECOND TILT TOMORROW

The heavy rain at New Haven forced the postponement of the scheduled opener so that the New Haven game will be played tomorrow.

Both teams profit slightly due to the delayed opening. The respective pitching staffs, badly shot through heavy usage over a busy week-end, have thereby had just that much more time in which to rest up

Harvard is still rated as slight favorite to win not only today's engagement but the two-game series as well, thus achieving a feat which hasn't been duplicated in seven long years.

Fred Mitchell and Joe Wood, Crimson and Blue coaches, respectively, are loathe to nominate their starting pitchers until just before game time. But it is the consensus today. He sends John Fitzpatrick of Medford to shortstop to replace Craig Woodruff, whose fielding has been seriously handicapped by a back injury

In the event that Loughlin hurls this afternoon, Frank Allan will get the call in tomorrow's wind-up affair. Bernie Rankin, Skip Sherlock's protege from Hyde Park, will work for the Yales tomorrow if Parker is on the mound today

Mitchell is making one major that Capt. Eddie Loughlin, slim 125-pound Concord right hander, will be opposed by Capt. Bob Farnes of Yale. The pair are two of the most able hurlers in Eastern Intercollegiate League ranks.

LOUGHLIN HURT FINGER

Loughlin's record as mainstay of the Crimson flinging forces is more than a shade better on face value. But looking below the surface, we note that Parkera defeats have been registered against him not so much through his own fault as through an exceptionally heavy crop of errors which his loosely-fielding teammates have piled up in critical and costly moments

3 CUP YACHTS IN SAME RACE

MISS ORCUTT EASTERN CHAMP

By Associated Press

Noroton, Ct., June 20—Maureen Orcutt, blonde Haworth (N. J.) golfer won the Eastern women's golf championship today with a three-day total score of 244 for the 54 holes of medal play.

The Metropolitan champion, who thrice before has won the Eastern crown, shot a par-equaling 77 on her last 18 holes to wrest the title from Charlotte Glutting, another New Jersey star.

Miss Orcutt's performance today equalled that of Monday, when she carded a 77. Yesterday, playing in a driving rain, she carded a 80.

The new women's titleholder was out in 37, one under par, coming back in 40, one over par. She lost a chance to break par of the course when she three-putted on the 11th, 15th and 18th holes.

Her card:

Par out	5	5	5	3	4
Orcutt out	5	4	4	3	5
Par in	4	4	4	4	4
Orcutt in	4	5	5	4	4

Par out	5	5	5	3	4	4	3	4	4	36
Orcutt out	5	4	4	3	5	4	3	5	4	37
Par in	4	4	4	4	4	5	3	4	5	37
Orcutt in	4	5	5	4	4	4	3	4	4	37

Miss Glutting, wh had Miss Orcutt as runner-up last year, became runner-up herself this year, with a grand total of 253. The Rock Springs star had an 81 today.

Four Out of Five From Chisox Will 'Make' Yawkeys

By Joe Cashman

Loquacious Jimmy Dykes brings his Chicago White Sox to Fenway Park this afternoon for the opener of a five-game series which has glorious opportunity for our Red Sox written all over it.

The Harris hopefuls, only four games back of the top at this writing, can't fail to climb high into the first division before the end of the week, providing they can take at least four out of five from the basement setter.

The schedule makers thus a certainly by putting the pace-setting Yanks against the fourth-place Indians and the runner-up Tigers against the third-place Senators, the while the rival Sox are battling at the Fens.

SOLTERS BACK SOON

In other words, every victory turned in by the natives must mean a gain of a full game on two of the four clubs now above them

It appears that the door to the heights couldn't be left ajar at a more favorable time for the Fenway favorites. They have set the fastest pace in the league for the past three weeks, gaining the edge in five of six series and winning 14 out of 21 games, and their season's record against the Windy City's Pale Hose is four wins in five starts.

Manager "Bucky" Harris deserves plenty of credit for the way he has kept his chin up and his charges inspired in face of a flock of adversities that would cause many pilots to throw in the sponge.

It's probable that the Sox would now be leading the parade but for the mishaps that befell "Lefty" Grove, "Rube" Walberg and Lem Solters, but far from letting the loss of these stars discourage him, Harris has moulded a winning combination without them.

LARY BIG HELP

The Sox at the moment compare favorably on paper with any club in the loop. They have a devastating attack and their fielding has left little to be desired since Lyn Lary was acquired to fill the shortstop gap and Billy Werber moved over to third, where he has proved a sensation. The pitching could be better, but that's equally true of all seven rivals.

According to latest reports, Solters will be ready to return to action within a week, and Walberg ought to be pitching in less than a fortnight

The Sox future couldn't look brighter.

The five games with the Chicagoans will be played on four days, the twin-bill being carded for tomorrow

The last time the Pale Hose were here, Jimmy Dykes had just been named to succeed Lou Fonseca as manager. There appears to be more harmony, hustle and fight in the ranks since the popular third sacker was put in charge.

NEW YORK PROS PASS UP MASS. OPEN TILT

By Bill Grimes

Due to a conflict with the qualifying round of the Metropolitan P. G. A. championship, the 28th Massachusetts open, which starts next Monday at the Oyster Harbors Club, will be restricted to local professionsal and amateur talent.

Until a year ago, when Teddy Turner won the title at Belmont Spring, the Bay State open attracted an army of out of state professionals, who lent considerable class to the event.

From 1926, when Donald Vinton, pro at the Plymouth Country Club, pulled the unexpected and won at Worcester, until Turner took over the crown, the title was not in the hands of a New England pro, although it resided for the year of 1929 at the home of Jesse P. Guilford in Newtonville and spent another year on Lake Street with Francis Ouimet

From 1926 to 1933, the title hopped around from one out of state professional to another, namely, Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel, Joe Turnesa and Wiffy Cox. Guilford took it away from Diegel at Vesper, and Ouimet succeeded Cox two years ago at Oyster Harbors.

WHERE IS MASSACHUETTS

There is absolutely no excuse for the Metropolitan District P. G. A. qualifying round conflicting with the Massachusetts open.

The Massachusetts Golf Association released its schedule during the winter. The P. G. A. championship will not be played until August. The N. E. P. G. A. qualifications will not be held until next month

Yet the powers that be in the Metropolitan District were unable to uncover any date other than one which came during the Massachusetts open.

Naturally, the Metropolitan District professionals are more desirous of qualifying for the P. G. A. championship than they are in the Massachusetts open

As soon as President Charles H. Cross of the Massachusetts Golf Association was advised of the conflict, he telephoned President C. A. Inglis of the Metropolitan P. G. A., requesting that the New York professionals qualify for their association championships at a later date

The Metropolitan District P. G. A. refused to consent to the shift, and as a result the Mass. open is left holding the bag.

TURNER WILL DEFEND

Apparently, President Inglis, like all New Yorkers, is laboring under the impression that nothing counts outside of Gotham. There is no rhyme or reason for holding the Metropolitan District qualifications two months prior to the championship.

Turner will defend at Oyster Harbors. He defeated Frank Dickey in a play-off a year ago and acquired his first major title. Although he is now out of this district, Turner is going exceptionally well down around the Philadelphia section, and he will be touch to beat.

There are a number of the leading amateurs entered for the Oyster Harbors classic. Guilford, twice winner of the title, and Fred J. Wright, Jr., many time holder of the state amateur crown, will be two for the professionals to beat to keep the crown in their ranks.

Guilford won the first fourth round of the British amateur championship, and Wright is shooting his best golf in years.

Robertson Sees Four-Minute Mile Ahead; Ryder and Hedlund Hold Out for 4:04

By Walter Kiley

Glenn Cunningham started the pot boiling when he ran the mile in new world record figures of 4.06.0 at Princeton. College track coaches throughout the country have been burning the midnight oil ever since trying to figure out a four-minute mile but they are meeting with uniform disappointment.

By far the most optimistic is Lawson Robertson, Pennsylvania's veteran, who pulls a surprise when he states that not Cunningham but one Jen Robertson of San Francisco is the fastest man to put the spurs to it. It is [illegible] done at all.

Now, who is this Jen Robertson, the pride of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, is a question at once. He has 8.0-yard world record and 1.49[illegible] at Princeton being [illegible] second to [illegible] Cunningham.

BECCALI RING-DOUBLE

But Robertson claims that Eastman, who is big chested, powerful and a long strider, recently ran a practice mile in 4.10, one of his first attempts at the distance, and he feels the Californian will make his bid for mile and 1500 meter honors as the next Olympic games approach

Robby further [illegible] man will not only [illegible] Cunningham's time [illegible] would threaten that ambitious four minute perfect performance

Jack Ryder of Boston C[illegible] and Oscar Hedlund of M. I. T. take odds with Robertson. But once again there is a clash of opinions.

Ryder considers Luigi Beccali of Italy the greatest m[illegible] in the world. If Beccali were [illegible] he beat Lovelock last year and that a continuance on to the mile mark would have given him practically a 4.05 performance.

Hedlund's views are based on a

Hedlund's Composite Mile

	1st	2d	3rd	4th
Cunningham	1 01.04	2 03.08	3 07.07	4 06.0
Lovelock	1 01.01	2.03.08	3 08.07	4 07.06
Bonthron	1 01.02	2 03.05	3.08.06	4 08.07
Lardoumegue	1 00.08	2 03.08	3.08.06	4 09.02
Cunningham	1 01.04	2 06.08	3 09.06	4.09.08
Nurmi	58.06	2 01.08	3 06.07	4.10.04
Taber	58.00	2 05.00	3 13.00	4 12.06
Jones	1 01.00	2.09.04	3 18.02	4.14.04

Fastest first quarter—Taber, 58 seconds.
Fastest second quarter—Lovelock, 1:02.02.
Fastest three quarter—Cunningham, 1:01.08.
Fastest fourth quarter—Jones, 58.02
Composite mile—4:06.02

His views his claim on the fact that Beccali ran the 1500 meters in the world figures of 3.49.08 as he beat Lovelock last year and that a continuance on to the mile mark would have given him practically a 4.05 performance.

Hedlund's views are based on a [illegible] chart he has drawn up [illegible] the record breaking miles [illegible] This shows that a composite of the fastest quarters would result in a mile 4.00.02, which more or less throws cold water on one runner being a le to hit such a torrid pace over one quarter after another

CUNNINGHAM SEEKS 4.04

But he does think Cunningham can do better than 4.05 and would have [illegible] at least a second faster last week had Bonthron been running at his shoulder throughout.

Cunningham himself feels certain he can turn in a 4.04 mile, with conditions ideal and his injured ankle fully healed.

The Kansan proved last Saturday that he knows his possibilities so no one can be quoted as a better authority

In the meanwhile a glance at the accompanying charts designed by Hedlund, shows that Nurmi Taber ran the fastest first-quarter ever raced in a record mile, in 58 seconds; Jack Lovelock did 1.02[illegible] for the second; Cunningham 1.01.08 for the third; and John Paul Jones 58.02 for the fourth, thus giving us the composite 4.00.02 mile.

$60,000 for Carnera After Cutting Melon Fiermonte's Future

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING IN [illegible] left from the [illegible] with his bout with Max Baer [illegible] he pays [illegible] ing expenses. Federal and New York State taxes. [illegible]

Mr. Boston

Carnera's bankruptcy petition is relied upon to ward off the legal thrusts of the London waitress who received a $15,000 judgment against Primo in a breach of promise suit. The only way the dear young thing can collect is to show that Satchel Feet was solvent at the time he asked the court to adjudge him a bankrupt. He then was under contract to fight Jack Sharkey, and there was a provision in the contract calling for a title defense bout if he beat the Boston heavyweight.

* * *

THE BRIGHT [illegible] minds [illegible] tract [illegible] an asset. If they succeed, Primo will have to send the little girl over in merry old London 15 grand. Which will make her feel like a Sweepstakes winner.

Sharkey on Baer

JACK SHARKEY sa[illegible] Max Baer was in good [illegible] with Primo Carnera [illegible] to the [illegible].

"Baer has perfect muscles," said Sharkey. "They have the suppleness that goes with youth. They are smooth, and give Max his great hitting power.

"I do not believe Steve Hamas would have much of a chance against Baer."

* * *

SHARKEY says Carnera would have made a better showing against the new champion if he had remembered the old ring adage about holding your left hand high.

"When Carnera dropped his left hand in the first round," said Sharkey, "Baer came through with the deadly right hand punch to the jaw which put him on the road to victory."

* * *

JACK DEMPSEY [illegible] Baer to force the Garden to stage another title bout in September. Dempsey figures Max is a cinch to lick either Primo Carnera or Hamas. Once Baer is through with his Garden contract he will box under the promotion of Dempsey.

THE NEW YORK Athletic Commission [illegible] points for [illegible] that Enzo Fiermonte [illegible] opponent for Maxie Rosenbloom.

* * *

BILL BROWN was entitled to one victory anyway.

* * *

Kearns Likes Fiermonte

JACK KEARNS thinks so well of Fiermonte's chances in the ring he has asked Charley Johnston to let him handle his affairs in California. Kearns believes he can build up Enzo for a bout with Max Baer.

I DO NOT believe Mrs. Fiermonte, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, would approve of her handsome husband going to the Coast for a series of bouts. She prefers him to remain near their home at Southampton, N. Y.

5,000,000 Can Whip Baer

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, June 20—In this country alone, there are at least 5,000,000 men who can whip Max Baer in a rough-and-tumble, go-as-you-please, no-holds-barred battle.

Not only Max Baer, but any other professional boxer.

Yet of this great number, there is not one man, apparently, able to whip Baer with fat gloves on his fists under the modern ring rules.

Strange, is it not?

But there is a big difference in fighting and wrestling.

It is doubtful if there are many men in the whole world who could throw the professional wrestlers, Londos and Browning, in a rough-and-tumble wrestling match.

The professional wrestlers, in a rough-and-tumble match, could use holds barred in their professional game, that would make any unschooled fellow say, "Uncle."

JOE MULLIGAN, DON KELLETT DON HOSE

By Joe Cashman

Joe Mulligan, Holy Cross mound ace, has decided to cast his lot with the Red Sox. The Weymouth giant will report to Manager "Bucky" Harris tomorrow along with Don Kellett, captain and shortstop of the University of Pennsylvania nine.

A sore hand kept Mulligan out of the Purple lineup the first week of the season until the annual series with Boston College, when he stepped out to beat the Eagles twice. Last Spring he was one of the East's outstanding collegiate right-handers.

Wes Ferrell was slated to go to the Red Sox hill in the opener of the series with the White Sox this p. m. The former Cleveland ace has won three games and has yet to be charged with defeat since becoming a battery mate of brother Rick.

"I'll be back before the close of the season," Dick Barrett promised the writer when he (Dick), was farmed out by the Braves to Albany. That was only five weeks ago, and the young right-hander rejoins the Tribe in Pittsburgh today.

At the same time, Flint Rhem, erstwhile bad boy of the mound, will become a Warrior, having been acquired via the waiver route from the Cards. The big Tarheel was a great pitcher in St. Louis under McKechnie, but has been of little use to the Cards, Phils or Reds since Wilkinsburg Will came to Boston. Apparently the Tribal pilot believes he can make Flint a winner again.

The Braves, incidentally, are the miracle club of the majors at the moment. With only 19 players, and four of them far from being physically fit, the club has split even in four games with the Cards and taken three out of four from the Cubs in the West.

Ed Brandt's brilliant four-hit performance which gave them a 2 to 1 victory over the Cubs in Tuesday's contest, enabled the Warriors to take fourth place from the Pirates.

Pierotti is "coming back" after a year away from the game. He has had two bouts in the last few weeks and won both. Furthermore, he has been in secret training for this bout for three months.

Arena doctors examined him today and proclaimed him in A-1 condition. He's out to annihilate the mystery man for the abuse which has been showered on him. It looms as the fiercest "grudge" match in local annals and may develop into a real caveman clash.

The bout will be two falls out of three to a positive finish. MacLean will have another huge crowd on hand for it looks like the "Baer-Carnera" bout of wrestling.

In the semifinal Dick Stahl, the German Oak, will take on Handsome Harry Lundin from Cornell.

Max Baer Knocks Out 3 Cowboys; Quits Ranch for Ring

There's never been another fighter like dynamic, handsome, young Max Baer, who pummeled Primo Carnera into submission and won the world's heavyweight championship last Thursday night in New York. Famous playboy, center of a dozen torrid romances, Maxie continues today the story of his "Life and Loves" with the same give-it-the-works abandon that made him a champion in the ring. Start it today and don't fail to miss its drama, thrill and laughs every day.

By MAX BAER

CHAPTER 3

What a lot of people seem to be interested in is my romance with Dorothy Dunbar, about which plenty has been written, but I'm the only fellow that knows the real McCoy on that.

But I'll pass it up for a while and give you a little something about my history. I've learned from being master of ceremonies that when you're introducing a guy, the important thing is to tell who he is, where he comes from, why, and all that.

Although I am 6 feet 2½ inches tall and weigh 210 to 215 pounds—I'm a pretty sizable bird any way you look at it—yet, so far as bulk is concerned, I'm almost a midget in my own family.

My father, Jacob Baer, is a German-French Jew. Not so tall, but he's heavy. My mother, who was Dora Bayler, is of Scotch-Irish descent. She's fairly tall and weighs well over 200. Frances, my oldest sister—she's twenty-eight—isn't very tall, but weighs about 235. Bernice, who is twenty, is 5 feet 11 and weighs about 175. My only brother, "Buddy," is eighteen, notches 6 feet 6½ inches, and scales better than 250.

WORKED AS SHOVELLER

Omaha is a town that gets a swell break. That's where I was born. The papers there can bust out with headlines now because they can yell something about the home-town boy that made good—and how!

My birth date was February 16, 1909. When I was four, the family moved to Denver. At eight, we shifted to Oakland.

I went as far as one year in high school, and voted against any more of it. I took a job in a gravel yard in Oakland. Yep, I was a laborer. Shovelling—that was my pastime. A little while later they found out how bright I was and promoted me to handling an acetylene torch.

My father bought a ranch near Twin Oaks, outside of Livermore, and I became a rancher. You can get plenty of muscle on a ranch. Try it sometime, and you may be another Max Baer.

While at the ranch I went to the dance I spoke about earlier (Editor's note: In the second article) with some of my pals. They swiped the painter's wine, he socked me, I socked him, knocked him cuckoo—and decided the next day I'd be a world's champion.

ASKS COWBOY TO FIGHT

When the cowboys in our neighborhood heard that I had bought a punching bag and was tuning up to be a fighter, they nearly laughed themselves dizzy. You see, they didn't know about the change that had come in my make-up. They remembered me only as "that yellow Baer kid," and when I passed one of them on the street one day, he took to kidding me.

I invited him to come out to the ranch and put the gloves on, and I was a little tough about it, and boasting, too. And was he surprised? And pleased! Those cowboys like to beat up fresh kids. Here was a swell chance for him—he thought.

He accepted, and brought along some of his buddies to see me get killed.

That bird swung once—and missed. I swung once—and didn't. That ended the fight. It took about three minutes to wake him up.

The biggest of his pals was all riled. He began to snort about a lucky punch. So I told him to put the gloves on and see what he could do. He put them on. I missed two swings. The third landed—on his forehead. Another cowboy was out "cold." All that happened in a little gymnasium owned by Percy Madsen, a friend.

I wasn't so hot on marksmanship in those days. Just power—plenty of that. I never swung on anybody's chin in my early fighting. The head—any part of it. That's all I aimed for. My hands were as hard as steel, and I belted over boys in my first fights by hitting them anywhere from the chest to the top of their heads.

After I blotted out those two cowboys, I began to get a reputation in the neighborhood—for being daffy. People who knew me from my kid days, and knew me as a coward, wouldn't believe I had stiffened two tough cowboys with my fists alone. They couldn't figure me CHALLENGING anybody unless I had a lot of hardware in my gloves.

And when they heard about that crazy laugh, and that grin when I banged one of those cowboys well, they put everything together and predicted the asylum for me.

I think they're still reserving a pew there for me.

A right big cowboy near Livermore heard about me flattening those two fellows, and he heard too, that I had been around the town boasting that I could lick any and all cowboys.

He regarded that as an insult to his trade, so he came around with a half dozen of his friends, and wanted to know if I wanted to take him on.

"Sure," I said. "The gang, too."

That mix-up lasted a little longer than the others. The fellow knew a little about jabbing. He poked me a few on the nose. I swung one from a neighbor's orchard—and missed. I let loose another from the back of the barn. That didn't click, either. I shortened the next. It hit the cowboy on the cheek, and the show was over. The other boys didn't care to meet me—except socially.

I was a great cowboy tamer.

Just about then I decided to quit the ranch and go to Oakland and start on a ring career. So I lit out from home, got a room in Oakland and went to the Imperial Gymnasium to try my luck.

The first time there I saw Ray Pelkey, then a prominent light heavy, and right away I elected him to the job.

COACHING JOBS AT SOMERVILLE UNSETTLED

By Bill Connell

Somerville High School's coaching situation was unsettled today, with Charley Dickerman still the head coach of sports. Cleo O'Donnell and others reported headed for the sports teaching posts were noncommittal regarding the situation.

O'Donnell is to be named head coach of sports, and Art McManus of B. C. High has been reported due to assist O'Donnell, with Dickerman dropping the coaching reins, but remaining at Somerville High.

Dickerman today said he had not been informed of any such changes as mentioned above. McManus said he had not been approached regarding the change to Somerville and that the story was news to him.

However, O'Donnell is to be announced Somerville coach in the very near future. Other changes contemplated will be made public at that time.

Cleo O'Donnell had marked success as a coach at Everett and Somerville high schools. He has been out of active coaching for several seasons, since he dropped the grid berth to give all his time to directing sports at Holy Cross. With new field, locker room and other facilities planned for Somerville, prospects for future sports success are excellent.

Golden Flood of Dollars Cascading on Baer as Reward for Wearing Ring Crown

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

New York, June 20—Jason had the golden fleece, but he was only another man at the $2 window today compared to Max Baer, the brand-new and not even window-worn heavyweight champion, as the big, serious, heavyweight kind of money began pouring down upon him in something of a cascade. He's being paid $50,000 for his radio broadcasts. He'll make a quarter of a million before the first of the year He'll do better later. It will be a long time before he does worse

Baer, in fact, is destined to be the first heavyweight champion since Dempsey and Tunney to make more than the wages of a good, reliable chairwoman out of the title His immediate predecessors just didn't have it.

OUT-EARNS PRIMO

Baer has made more in the last week than Prime Camera made in a year, and has had to hire three assistants to keep urgent propositioon-men away from him and three more to make certain they stay away. Those who have gotten to him have ideas running into four and five figures for endorsements, movie rights, personal appearances and vaudeville. He also figures to cross well up into the five-figure thousands from his newspaper work and his October fight

Quite so; there will be an October fight. At least, I was told so today by a man by the name of Jack Dempsey, who ought to know He seems to know everything else about Baer. The opponent, he said would be chosen from among Steve Hamas, Art Lasky, Max Schmeling and King Levinsky, and that Madison Square Garden would put the fight on. He wasn't speaking for Madison Square Garden; he was speaking for himself. The Garden contract with Baer specifies another fight by October or it's no dice So, if the Garden wants to make any more money out of Baer, this is it's last chance. Next summer he'll fight for Dempsey.

ON AN ALLOWANCE

Incidentally, I am shocked to learn authoratively today that our sterling champion has been holding out on us in a very dastardly manner. He was not the pauper we made him seem to be before the Carnera fight; he wasn't even a spendthrift, nor was he, as alleged, a young man who was taken unexpectedly broke last winter. He had and still has on deposit in a local bank a very respectable account, administered with close scrutiny by Ancil Hoffman, his manager; so close, in fact, that all Baer takes out of it is a nominal sum each week for spending money

Why, doggone me, the big heliotrope is on an allowance!

He's a champ, eh. He may be just a bogey is just a sucker for a well placed slipper. Momma has just finished interviewing her "honey boy" on the subject of blondes, brunettes and kindred subjects. Maxie failed to have the right answers, and Momma just placed her husky son across her knees and started flailing. That is, for the benefit of photographers. EQUIPOISE OUT, ROCKINGHAM ANNOUNCES

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, [illegible] Equipoise, son of Pennant [illegible] was withdrawn from the Rockingham meeting. It was learned this morning

Equipoise, one of the great horses of all time was to have appeared in the Granite State Handicap, for a purse of $10,000 on Saturday, the opening day

The officials however, took his withdrawal with good grace, for a phenomenal field has entered even without one of the greatest money winners in the history of horse racing

Lou Smith also announced that there is little likelihood of either Mr. Khayyam of Burgoo King going postward in the feature. Burgoo King came out of the Queen City Handicap last Saturday lame, while Mr. Khayyam has not, as yet, recovered from his recent [illegible]

Traynor Calls Braves Home-Lot Ball Club

By International News Service

So opined Harold Traynor, [illegible] ager "Pie" Traynor of the Pit[illegible] ball club, in explaining why [illegible] team is in a slump. Traynor [illegible]eeda Georges Gibson who took over the pilot's seat of the Bucs [illegible] He continued

"You can't beat things like what happened yesterday. Lloyd Waner made a slide for the plate but was called out by Empire Reardon. I'm not allhiing, but I saw some pictures of the play and it looks as if Lloyd had the play beaten. That was just one of the breaks that's kept us from winning. They've happened against us and we must evens day."

GIANTS OUTHIT

He looked over the box score of yesterday's game New York was credited by the Pirates, 13 to 11. The Bucs had three bases on balls against one issued to the New Yorkers. New York had the edge on two-baggers, four to three, but the teams both had a triple apiece On top of that Schumacher had two wild pitches against him. Neither team made an error. Yet when they totalled the score, New York had won, 8 to 5

The third baseman-manager whose elevation to the job of piloting the Bucs failed to stop the Giants from making it a series of three straight, nevertheless was optimistic

Lots, Luck, in no small quantity, of "PC" is missing. Of that there is no question according to the new pilot. The team is [illegible] capable of playing winning ba Traynor has no doubts of that

The new Corsair chieftain didn't relish the idea of commenting as to what he thought of player material and hose of the bench type. He agreed that Terry Cronin and Cochrane haven't failed by very much in their dual roles and he hought [illegible] handle his as well

BRAVES HOME LOT CHIEF

What does the new pilot think of the rest of the league? In a nutshell, this

"The Giants and Cards are and will be the teams to beat.

"Stengel has them all afire down Brooklyn way.

"The Cubs are floundering because of poor pitching

Brae Burn Retains Four-Ball Title

By Bill Grimes

The Boston Four Ball League season wound up in a heavy downfall of rain and an avalanche of argiments at Weston. The matches were called off and put on again three times before any of the contestants reached Weston.

Weather conditions were the worst that ever confronted any golf match, yet there were some very creditable scores turned in, notably Charlie Davidson's 38 for the Inward nine.

From the decipherable figures, Brae Burn retained its title, edging out Winchester, but the final standing will not be available until The Country Club and Charles River have played off. The Country Club failed to put in an appearance, and Capt. Wallie Howard, of Charles River, agreed to play off the match

Francis Shea, Wollaston club champion, was his own caddy, and, in order to be physically able to play, he carried only a spoon, a midiron and a putter. At that, he won three points.

If Dan McCormick and Newman Drake, who qualified in the second division for the Belmont Spring C. C. championship, meet in the second round, Mat Campbell will prevent trouble by calling out the state militia. And, if they have already met, the state militia has, by this time, put in for and received a 30-day furlough, which they had coming to them.

Winthrop Golf Club is staging the only open tournament in these parts on the week-end, a two-day affair starting Friday. Winthrop is a very attractive nine hole course and Jim Lally will make the visitors feel at home

Bill Duffy has sent out a personal appeal to the open tournament players to trek out to Trapelo tomorrow or Friday and try their luck on one of the best nine hole courses in New England. There will be three classes at Trapelo and a special trophy for breaking par.

One of New England's oldest four ball combinations—Chuck Weathers and Tom McGinn—will start battling for honors in the annual Lake Sunapee Country Club invitation tomorrow.

Apparently, Weathers has planned upon staying at least two days at New London, for he is taking four sets of clubs with him.

Morgan Sargent and Ted Berghaus annexed three points for Wollaston against Oakley at Weston by a couple of freak shots. At the 14th,which was their 8th hole, Sargent chipped in for a birdie four to win the outward nine. Then at the 8th, the home hole, Berghaus ran in a very lengthy putt for a deuce to take the inward nine and the match

Frazier L. O'Leary and Frazier L Jr.—better known away from Welles avenue, Dorchester as "Jerry," raced up to the C[illegible] Homes this morning to participate in the annual Country Club of Springfield medal and match play invitation.

Caymanas, 50 to 1 Shot, Wins Race

Ascot, England, June 20 (INS)—A 50-to-1 shot, Caymanas, won the Royal Hunt cup here today. Highlander was second and Young Native, third.

Caymanas came home ahead of a field of 29 runners and paid the rich odds of 50 to 1. Highlander paid 100 to 7 and Young Native 33 to 1. King George and Queen Mary were again present, as they were at yesterday's running of the Ascot Stakes.

Baseball Tips; No. 12

By Austen Lake

THE HOOK SLIDE

Find a soft spot to practice the hook slide and begin by trying it slowly. Be careful not to catch your spikes in the ground when you swing the lead foot away from the bag in a "fallaway" motion. You must be able to use the hook slide to either side of the bag, always sliding to the side away from the approach of the ball in order to give the baseman less of a tagging area.

As you approach, fall off to the side, extending the right leg if you are sliding to the right side of the bag and catching the base with the toe of the left foot. The process is reversed on slides to the left side.

Mat Results

Three Rivers, Que.—Bob McCoy, Cambridge, Mass., defeated Hyin Demetroff, Detroit, two falls to one, McCoy took first in 13:00 and the third in 9.30. Demetroff took second in 6.00.

Portland, Me.—Fred Bronn, New York, smacked and kicked Billy Wallace, Buffalo, to defeat in 32 36.

New York.—Hans Schnabel, Germany, threw Dick Griffin, Australia, Joe Savoldi, Michigan, downed Babe Caldaro, New England champion. Gino Garibaldi, Italy, tossed Henry Glahn, German.

The question of the constitutionality of the gold clause of a mortgage bond is about to be answered. In a suit brought by Major Walter K. Tuller counsel for the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles, it is contended that the bonds of the Richfield Oil Company were stated as payable in gold. Bondholders consequently, Major Tuller will argue, are entitled to payment in gold or money equivalent to gold. A favorable decision by Judge William P. James, who will hear the plea, would mean forty million instead of twenty-five million for bondholders.

The bond market continues to lead the parade on the upside. But so many high-grade issues have risen to levels where yields are at the vanishing point that investors are wondering just where they may employ their funds. That there is a slopover into bonds of lesser merit is undeniable. Liens that just miss the institutional class are beginning to receive the rather belated attention of investors and that is the section we advise concentrating attention on.

King Is Made Head of Copper Code

Washington, June 20—Release of H. O. King, division administrator, so that he might become administrator for the copper code, was formally announced by General Johnson in connection with a statement on why he permitted the move in the face of rules which ordinarily bar NRA officials from taking jobs with code authorities.

Johnson stated King will become the copper code head at the unanimous request of the industry. Complex problems of the code demanded an executive from outside the industry as an impartial administrator, Johnson said.

The General said, in part:

"There is a specific NRA regulation which absolutely forbids any man, who having acted as a deputy in the formation of a code, has resigned and gone to work for that code authority, from appearing before NRA. The reason for this rule is the inevitable suspicion that there was prearrangement affecting the formation of the code. It is a necessary rule, and Mr. King's appointment is in flat violation of it, but is permitted because of a real emergency, the great distress among copper miners, the administrator's personal knowledge of the circumstances and the administrator's certainty that no such collusion existed.

"In view of these facts and his conviction that Mr. King is to be trusted in any such relationship, the administrator has decided that, after making the public fully aware of just what is being done, he is justified in making this exception."

Ford Expresses View That Industry Is Moving Upward

By Associated Press

Detroit, June 20—Henry Ford, in an interview today, expressed the conviction that "the industrial picture looks better all the time," and that "things are getting better in spite of everybody grabbing up all they can get."

"Things are very much on the upgrade," the automobile manufacturer said, "and have been since people made up their minds to get out and work."

Ford said that although he had not given much attention to the activities of the session of Congress just closed, he thought it "quite natural that people should breathe a sigh of relief when Congress goes home and that business should 'stretch' and start out anew."

Discussing general industrial conditions, Ford said that there is bound to be "an occasional slump—kind of a vacation." He added, at the same time, that the country can "get along very successfully on a five day week."

Then, as an after-thought, he went on: "The six hour day and five day week would have been here by now if 'they' had let things alone." He did not indicate whom he meant by 'they.'

"The six-hour day is coming because with improved machinery things can be made faster and more time is needed to consume them," he continued.

Of recent price reductions in the automobile industry, Ford said: "The minute a price reduction is in order the manufacturer might just as well cut prices, because everybody is looking for it, anyway."

Ford was in his usual good health and to show that he carries lightly his 71 years, he vaulted over a four foot rail to have his picture taken with the 1,000,000th of the newer models of Ford cars as it came from the assembly line.

"Well," observed Ford, "we've held up the production of 22 cars!"

GOLD CLAUSE RULING MADE

By Associated Press

St Louis, June 30 (AP)—Federal legislation abrogating the "gold clause" in about $100,000,000,000 of bonds payable in the United States, was upheld by Federal Judge Charles B. Faris in a decision today.

Judge Faris ruled that all obligations containing the gold clause may be paid at face value in currency.

The decision was given in a suit by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, trustee for a $34,518,000 issue of Iron Mountain Railroad bonds, which contended that Congress had no right to declare payment in gold against public policy.

Payment of the Iron Mountain bonds in present currency of the equivalent of gold of the same standard and weight as existed at the time the bonds were issued would have increased the amount due bondholders to about $58,500,000.

Counsel for trustees of the Missouri Pacific Railroad of which the Iron Mountain now is a part, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the commissioner of internal revenue contended abrogation of the "gold clause" was imperative in view of urgent economic conditions.

DOLLAR STEADY IN EUROPE

By Associated Press

The dollar was steady to higher in the foreign exchange markets today.

Weakness in the pound sterling against leading currencies enabled the dollar to gain ⅞ of a cent in London at a closing price of $5.03⅞ to the pound. The British currency continued to decline in the later New York trading, slipping to $5.03¼, off 1¼ cents.

The price of gold in London rose a penny to 137 shillings 10½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.80). Bars valued at about $1,085,210 were sold at that price.

The dollar eased ¼ of a centime in Paris to the equivalent of 6.60¼ cents to the franc. The French currency lost .00¼ of a cent in New York at 6.60¼ cents.

Grains Lower in Chicago Trading

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—Setbacks of grain prices formed the rule today. Moisture in spring wheat territory northwest, together with slackness of speculative demand for at least the time being, had a bearish effect.

Opening ⅛-¾ down, September 94½-¾, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started ¾ off to ½ up, and subsequently receded all around.

FORBES TELLS EMPLOYERS TO PUSH AHEAD

President's Objective to Get America on Happy Basis

By B. C. FORBES

A plea to employers.

Now that Congress is adjourned, and with the prospect of six months of freedom from disturbing innovations at Washington, please put your best foot foremost.

B. C. Forbes

It was because business and industry had collapsed, because securities and commodities had fallen to ruinous depths, because unemployment had expanded to devastating proportions, because our banks were tottering, because social troubles were threatened that President Roosevelt was moved to launch immediately on entering the White House, numerous innovations theretofore unknown in America.

President Roosevelt's objective was and is to get America on a reasonably prosperous, happy basis.

It is now up to you employers to determine by your attitude and actions whether it shall be necessary or unnecessary for Washington to institute another deluge of financial and economic experiments in order to get America going satisfactorily.

The problem is yours rather than the President's in coming months.

If you exercise sufficient courage, sufficient ingenuity, sufficient resourcefulness, sufficient ability to increase business activity and employment on an impressive and gratifying scale, President Roosevelt logically will be disposed to let well enough alone rather than to demand that Congress, when it reconvenes in January, pass all sorts of additional revolutionary legislation.

That the great majority of citizens would rather see conditions righted without recourse to further un-American laws and decrees cannot be doubted.

But, neither can it be doubted that if you men of affairs, you employers, you fillers of pay envelopes, so show the white feather that conditions and employment relapse seriously, President Roosevelt will be impelled by the force of public sentiment to demand that Congress launch still more drastic laws, still more drastic dictation, still more drastic regimentation.

The country must go on. It must be made possible for the people of this country to live.

This is no time for narrow selfishness, shortsightedness, mercenariness.

You should hear ringing in your ears a tocsin call to exercise broad-gauge patriotism of the highest order, to exercise confidence in the nation's future, to accept risks in pushing forward business and employment rather than incur the alternative risk which would inevitably accompany economic relapse and Washington's measures to cure it.

Once a fire rages through a city no individual home owner in its path can hope to save his dwelling. Therefore, it behooves every responsible citizen to take every possible precaution against the starting and spreading of such a devastation.

What is your answer going to be?

Are you to prove equal to the opportunity and responsibility devolving upon you?

Or are you going to prove your inability to wrestle successfully with the problem, not to say menace, confronting you and the whole of America?

Momentous issues are at stake.

Are our cherished institutions, our cherished individual liberty of action, our cherished democracy to be maintained?

Or must we lurch into some entirely un-American form of dictatorship?

Can you do it?

Or must it be turned over to Washington?

We shall await your actions with the most intense interest.

Though quiescent, the commodity is showing a firmer tendency, according to the publication. Composites for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.199 cents a pound and $17.90 a gross ton, respectively.

STOCK TONE IS EASY AT CLOSE OF MARKET

New York, June 20—Financial markets found the going a little difficult again today and prices stumbled frequently over profit-taking barriers.

The activity in stocks, during the greater part of the session, was about half that of yesterday. Some groups displayed moderate resistance to the downward drift, but an easy tone was evidence throughout the list. While the pressure was not great in most share departments, there was, at the same time, a lack of any important support. News of a stimultaing nature was scarce.

Grains gave no aid to the equity division. Wheat dropped about 2 cents a bushel at one time, as further hedging operations appeared from the Southwest and rain was reported in the drought districts.

Cotton and silver futures lagged, but rubber firmed. Bonds were quiet and irregular. Prime investment issues held around their peaks of the year and secondary loans generally trailed stocks.

Copper shares were helped by the announcement that world stocks of the refined metal were reduced 58,000,000 pounds in May, with 32,000,000 pounds of this aggregate being accounted for by North and South America. Total world stocks on June 1, amounted to 1,076,000,000 pounds.

With Congress out of the way, and the labor situation fairly peaceful, Wall Street began to hunt for other worries. While there was less consternation concerning the probable effect the new stock exchange control law on both prices and trading parctices, there was a disposition in some quarters to delay commitments pending announcement of the makeup of the commission which will administer the securities act.

Stocks were moderately lower in dull trading in the first hour. The changes were only narrow. Steel shares were soft, with U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel showing losses of fractional proportions. U. S. Smelting was down fractionally. American Metal dropped a point.

Auburn and Ingersol Rand moved against the general trend, advancewas down a major fraction. General Mills dipped a point and Goodyear was down a similar amount. Western Union dipped a major fraction.

Sales to noon approximated 240,000 shares.

Stocks were still lower in the third hour with changes in leaders ranging from fractions to around 2 points. Penney was down around 2 points. U. S. Steel was off a major fraction. Hazel Atlas dropped a point. Atchison sagged a major fraction.

American Telephone moved against the general trend, advancing fractionally. Crown Cork & Seal was down more than a point. General Mills showed a loss of a point. Monsanto Chemical was a major fraction higher.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 370,000 shares.

In the fourth hour mild rallying tendencies were shown by shares of Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, Anaconda, Howe Sound, U. S. Smelting, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and General Motors.

Losers of fractions to around a point included Western Union, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Case, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, McIntyre Porcupine, Freeport Texas, Allied Chemical, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Corn Products, Columbian Carbon and General Electric.

Cash Register Co. Resumes Dividend

New York, June 20—National Cash Register Co. declared a dividend of 12½ cents a share on the common, payable July 15 to stock of record June 30. This is the first cash payment since a dividend of 37½ cents a share was paid on October 15, 1931.

"The present dividend is warranted by the earnings of the company for the current six months' period, and with a continuation of earnings in substantially the same amount further payments of dividends in the same amount quarterly may be expected. This would be at the rate of 50 cents a year on the 1,628,000 shares of outstanding common stock."

Southern Corp. Output is Higher

New York, June 20 (AP)—Electric output of the Commonwealth & Southern Corp. system for May was 501,153,617 kilowatt hours, against 458,880,561 for May, 1933, an increase of 9.2 per cent. For the five months ended May 31, output was 15.6 per cent ahead of the same period last year.

Crude Rubber Higher

New York, June 20 (AP)—Crude rubber futures were firm, 10 to 15 higher. July 13.60, Sept. 13.92, Oct. 14.15a, Dec. 14.30.

ACTIVITY IN COTTON OFF

By Associated Press

Washington, June 20—The cotton spinning industry was reported today by the census bureau to have operated during May at 98.2 per cent capacity, on a single shift basis, compared with 104.5 per cent during April this year and 112.3 per cent during May last year.

Spinning spindles in place May 31 totaled 32,029,950, of which 25,891,366 were active at some time during the month, compared with 31,011,200 and 26,450,750 for April this year, and 30,959,216 and 24,571,498 for May last year.

Active spindle hours for May totaled 7,278,082,293 or an average of 235 hours per spindle in place, compared with 7,260,010,234 and 234 for April this year, and 8,309,664,722 and 268 for May last year.

Cement Output in Month is Larger

Washington, June 20—The Portland cement industry in May, 1934, produced 8,554,000 barrels, shipped 8,731,000 barrels from mills and had in stock at the end of the month 21,345,000 barrels, according to the Department of Commerce. Production of Portland cement in May, 1934, showed an increase of 36.6 per cent and shipments an increase of 30.1 per cent as compared with May, 1933. Portland cement stocks at mills were 6.1 per cent higher than a year ago.

Rail Tonnage Seen as Small

The price cut in steel rails which was made on Oct. 31, 1933, did not do much to lift rail production last year and this year's indicated output is extremely small in comparison with the annual figures for the ten years ended 1931. Last year's rail tonnage came to 416,296 against 402,366 in 1932, the low. So far this year roughly 622,000 tons of rails have been ordered at the new price of $36.375 a ton agreed on at the insistence of the Administration. The year's total will not show much change from this figure as railroads generally place their orders in the winter for delivery in the spring and summer months.

While the price cut did not do the steel makers much good, it did help the railroads. Their bill for rails, this year, is going to be about $2,500,000 less than it would have been had the former price of $40 a ton been in effect.

87½-Cent Household Dividend

Chicago, June 20—Household Finance Corp. declared a quarterly dividend of 87½ cents on the participating preference stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the class A and B common stocks, all payable July 14 to stock of record June 30. The preference dividend is a reduction of 17½ cents from disbursements in 11 previous quarters.

The reduction was made, said B. E. Henderson, president, partly to re-establish the preference stock on its proportionate parity with the common as fixed by the charter, and partly in connection with lowering of charges to customers.

R-K-O Production Schedule

During the 1934-35 season RKO Radio Pictures, film subsidiary of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., will produce 50 feature films. In addition there will be produced 200 short subjects and the regular issues of the Pathe News.

New England showed a decrease of 2.1 per cent, against a decrease of 2.2 per cent last week, while the Rocky Mountain region showed a decrease of 0.7 per cent, compared with an increase of 12.5 per cent the previous week.

There were 25,598,098 tons of ore on hand at furnaces and Lake Erie docks at end of May, against 28,314,417 tons on the same date a year ago.

FRED ALLEN TRIES RADIO ADVERTISING IN BURLESQUE

Comedian Tips Off Ad Men Tonight

By N. F. T.

Here and there through various broadcasts, we have heard one comic and another clown around and about, poking fun at the various ways and means of advertising on the air. Fred Allen, the featured "Hour of Smiles" satirist, has in mind to top them all in that particular line of endeavor. All of which happens when he moves into his 60-minute "mike" monkey business tonight (WEEI) during the while 8 o'clock and 9 o'clock are coming together.

Here is something long awaited. If friend Fred can cover the whole situation in an hour, allowing for musical interludes, he is in line and away up front at that, for a Congressional medal. Make no mistake. This chap has about as sharp a sense of all around humor as any program performer in the broadcasting business. He seldoms fails to be funny. Even the illustrious Jack Benny has yet neglected to burlesque "Wagon Wheels" for his tire manufacturing sponsors with "Worn Out Tires, Try to Carry Me Home" but that's beside the point. Let's listen and hear how Fred Allen executes his new batch of ideas.

BUGS ABOUT BUGS

* * *

That celebrated semi-classic selection "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" is the principal piece picked for rendition (WNAC) by Nick Martinelli this evening between 9 and 9:30 p. m. Andre Kostelanetz directs the orchestra offerings throughout.

CURIOUS CLIENTELE

Someone who read the radio reports forth here Monday, meaning about Ed Wynn and Lanny Ross winning very special Yale commencement recognition, writes to ask if any plans are under way at Wellesley, Radcliffe or Vassar, with a view to honor Gracie Allen. Whereupon the colyum conductor must back away. Nothing of the latter nature seems apparent in the wind.

* * *

There's a surprise in store for the listeners to the "Crime Clues" airing (WEZ) come 8 o'clock this evening. An unexpected fictional twist attends the dramatic dindoings labeled "Life Is Too Short" as written especially for proper presentations by Stewart Sterling.

You Hear Him on the Radio

James Melton . . . From Gawgia, suh! . . . Who is Ed Wynn's rival . . . But only as to hats . . . Owning between 35 and 40 . . . All of which he wears . . . At one time or another . . . On a head that towers six feet three inches above the soil.

One of the original "Roxy's Gang" . . . Through which he broke into radio . . . A decade ago . . . Which was fortunate for the air-wave listeners.

Down at Moultrie . . . A little hamlet in Georgia . . . Jimmy was born . . . On the second day in 1904 . . . But his parents soon moved to Florida . . . Where Pa thought the lumber business might be better . . . Which it was . . . And the family still lives there.

But Jimmy went back to Georgia . . . to go through the University of Georgia . . . And move on to Vanderbilt College . . . At Nashville Tenn. . . . Where he saxophoned in the college orchestra . . . And met up with an opera singer.

So Jimmy too, voral lessons . . . Encouraged by the opera singer . . . And began singing tunes . . . With the dance band . . . Then worked his way north by degrees . . . And hunted musical comedy openings . . . Only to find S. L. Rothafel . . . Better known as "Roxy" . . . And "Roxy" gave him his chance.

Now James Melton is an ace name . . . On the airwaves . . . And even if he were left a million dollars . . . Says Jimmy fervently . . . He would still keep on singing . . . Into a mike . . . So much does he like it . . . And he dares anybody to offer him a million . . . Just as proof.

He is married to Marjorie McClure . . . The newspaper and mag. feature writer . . . Is addicted to cruising . . . On his own yacht . . . Cooking midnight suppers for his friends . . . And wearing hats . . .

JAMES MELTON

Tomorrow's Radio Personality Portrait will be that of Joe Cook, Hawaii's press agent.

Model Builders' Course—Lesson II

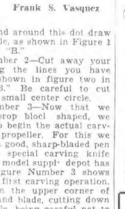
In order to have a propelled model plane, Junior Birdmen, we must of course, have a propeller. Balsa wood propellers may be purchased ready made, but half the fun of model building is in making your own parts complete.

While propeller carving is truly an art, it can be acquired with but little coaching and then improved upon by practice.

Today's lesson in our model builders' course for beginners explains the easiest method of carving a propeller. We will use the Balsa block three quarters (¾) of an inch by one and one half inch (1½) by seven (7) inches, which we included in the purchase of our materials, for this purpose.

Follow Closely All Steps in Diagram "B"

In addition to following the steps outlined below, be sure you refer to Diagram "B" published in this column. Then you will be certain not to make any error.



Frank S. Vasquez

Step Number 1—Our first procedure is to take our propeller block and on each flat side draw diagonal lines from corner to corner, making an "X." Then where the two lines cross each other in the center, place a small dot and around this dot draw a small circle, as shown in Figure 1 in Diagram "B."

Step Number 2—Cut away your block, along the lines you have drawn, as shown in figure two in Diagram "B." Be careful to cut around the small center circle.

Step Number 3—Now that we have our prop block shaped, we are ready to begin the actual carving of our propeller. For this we should use a good, sharp-bladed pen knife, or a special carving knife such as any model store has on sale. Figure Number 3 shows us the very first carving operation. We start on the upper surface of the right hand blade, cutting down little by little, being careful not to take too large a piece off each time or cutting away too far.

As we go along, we scoop the wood out rather than cut away, so that when we are finished the hollow will be concave and not straight.

Be sure you cut away from the hub and not toward the hub. This will prevent you from splitting your block. When the right blade is fully carved out, turn your blade around (not over) and carve the other blade out on the same side as you were working on first, in the same manner.

Step Number 4—After both blades have been scooped away, on the same side, we take our fine sandpaper and smooth the prop down carefully. Then we turn the blade over completely on the opposite side and go through exactly the same steps of carving, and sandpapering, as shown in Figure 5 in the diagram. Then round off the tips.

Step Number 5 is to insert the propeller shaft through the hub of the propeller. However, since we will not attempt to make this step complete until our next lesson, we will have to leave this for a later date. Be sure to save Diagram "B" as it will guide you.

Propeller Needs Even Balancing

The simplest method of balancing a propeller is to push a pin through the center or hub just where the shaft is to go. Hold the pin loosely between the fingers and with your other hand spin the propeller around. If your propeller spins evenly it is properly balanced. However, if one blade seems to fall heavily on the downward motion, that blade must be sandpapered until the propeller spins uniformly.

If after your propeller is carved, smoothly finished off and properly balanced, you find that is isn't just the sort of propeller you expected to make, don't become discouraged. Try another and another.

The names of the two winners of the Junior Birdmen Field Day essay contest will be published in the next issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser. They receive bronze trophies, inscribed with their names, donated by the New England Aircraft school, with which Capt. H. N. Carlson is associated.

Four New Squadrons in Junior Birdmen

Four new squadrons have been formed since membership requirements were lowered from 20 to 5. One of these is an all-girls squadron in Newburyport, composed of Ruth Bartlett, Winifred Bishop, Alice Buckley, Violet Gamble, Margaret Golden, Jean Hill, Evelyn Southwell and Marion Funk. These girls have also asked for rule books and entry blanks for the July model plane derby. Watch out, boys, that sounds like keen competition.

Robert Vacca of 23 Alfred street, Everett, lists three members in his squadron: Stanley Korvak, Daniel Keefe, Alichiero Zamo. Fred Zamo, Fred Vendina, Frank File and Alexander Montefore.

Jack Cambridge, 16 Ellis, 18, and 20 Gunnison avenue, Dorchester, are the George Paras, Bernard Bridges and Anthony Paraione. Tova Prasinos, Alexander Frankiel, George Manousas and William Manousas.

Commander Frank De Rosa, 18, of 169 Gove street, East Boston, lists these: Albert La Vecchia, Frank La Vecchia, Patsy Romano, Joseph Matola, Dominic De Gimbolo, Frank Imbrescia, Tony Dezirees, Anthony Di Sisto, Thomas De Fiste, Michael Iannaccone, Albert Campia, Rosario Barrasso and Tony Barrasso.

Happy Landings!

To a Seeker After Beauty

Dear City Dweller:—

If you're like us, you're just a trifle bored with city streets after this tough Winter we all went through. Beauty may be everywhere, like the artist says, but we guess you have to be an artist to see it.

More fun to get out into the country where Nature is her own architect, don't you think? There still are places where the hand of man hasn't yet substituted buildings for forests and highways for streams. Yes, it just means getting out into the country if you want to find real beauty—brilliantly-colored flowers, winding trails, mountain lakes, rolling green hills and such.

But "getting out into the country" in these days usually means getting an automobile. That's why we thought you'd be particularly interested in the Summer Used Car Carnival which we are conducting through the classified columns of the American all this week. The selection is tremendous, and the reduced prices will be a real surprise.

And so, if you want to find real beauty, we offer the means of reaching Nature's beauty spots—a good automobile at a price you can easily afford.

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Give Taxpayers Fair Deal on Liquor

COMPLAINTS accumulate that speakeasies and bootleggers continue to ply their illicit trade while licensed liquor places are closed in obedience to the law. Gambling resorts and other dens of vice that pay nothing into the public treasuries are also reported at the same time running "wide open."

The success of raiding parties, as made known through the public press, indicates that there IS something in the complaints mentioned. Certainly it is inconceivable that ALL the raids were made as soon as the laws were first violated.

The sale of liquors—light wines, beer and the "hard stuff"—was legalized in order to produce a revenue that would lighten the too heavy tax burdens of Mr. Ordinary Citizen.

Allowing the speakeasies and bootleggers to carry on as under the scrapped Prohibition Amendment is NOT giving the taxpayers a fair deal, either in this Commonwealth or the rest of New England.

WASHINGTON alone has appeared to be awake to the situation. The House passed measures designed to stifle the bootlegger. It has voted Government regulation of the liquor bottle manufacturing industry.

It also considered a bill requiring sellers of substances used in distilled spirits to furnish the names and addresses of the buyers when ordered by the Government. Molasses, cane, corn and malt sugars are included.

The liquor dealers' code authority this week is planning to take away the license of any wholesaler caught handling illicit liquors.

The National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association is seeking to stop the sale of used bottles, now picked up by bootleggers and illicit distillers, the members assert. They claim $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year is being made by those engaged in such sales.

This association is also backing House Resolution 9757, which would reduce the gallonage tax on liquors from $2 to $1.10. This bill, designed to raise more revenue by turning the bootleggers' business into legitimate channels, would at the same time reduce costs to the consumer. Adjournment throws the bill over to the next session.

Its author is Representative John R. McCormack of Boston.

There is really no reason why the exercise of ordinary intelligence should not straighten out rather speedily what is now decidedly wrong with the liquor situation.

Lessons for the Fourth

The toll of injuries and fires due to careless use of fireworks and firecrackers for the Bunker Hill holiday offers serious object lessons for the Fourth of July celebrators.

The total casualty list of more than 30 persons is much too large. Especially when we recollect that recent year Fourth of July casualties have been much less numerous.

The sanity in celebrations now appears to be vanishing. A Charlestown girl was burned while dancing in a Back Bay dance hall by a firecracker hurled from a balcony. A $4000 house was destroyed in Chelsea when boys hurled firecrackers through a window.

Bit of New England

The tourists who annually spend many thousands of dollars, benefiting all New England, do not visit this section for climatic and scenic attractions alone. Our wealth of shrines of historic interest is what draws a large proportion of these visitors.

What others think of our part in history is shown by the recent dedication of a stone from Fort Constitution (formerly William and Mary) at New Castle, N. H. Let's recognize our own assets.

Seizure by patriots of arms and ammunition at the old fort was the first open act of war against England. New Yorkers appreciate it, but the Federal Government is allowing the old "tower," built to resist the British, to tumble down piecemeal from sheer neglect.

Along Our Waterfront

Many curious cargoes are landed from the vessels docked along Boston's waterfront. Wild animals, "brought back alive" for New England's zoos, are a frequent spectacle.

At the Fish Pier, the haddock frequently displaces the "Sacred Cod" in poundage. Out of Boston has just sailed the new Rockport-built schooner Agda, hoping to bring in the season's first swordfish.

Then there's sugar from the Philippines, coffee from Brazil, hides and wools from South America, all included in the past week's arrivals. Along with 200 tons of mahogany from Africa for radio sets and fine furniture.

Schools For Bankers

President Edward A. Craig of the Boston Chapter of the American Institute of Banking suggests more schools for bankers. Mr. Craig believes that bank employes are due to enjoy shorter working hours, and would have the new leisure time employed in educational work hitherto largely neglected.

Boston has already started the experiment. Mr. Craig points out, with courses in commercial law, money and banking, Massachusetts really, correct English and public speaking.

These are all good things for our younger bankers as well as others to know about. Mr. Craig is fostering an excellent idea.

Some Real Safety Work

The old idea in construction circles used to be that big jobs necessarily cost lives. A skyscraper was once said to exact a toll of a life for every story.

The new idea, as exemplified by Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Transit Commission, is better. It's real safety work.

The Massachusetts Safety Council gave Colonel Sullivan's achievement deserved recognition, when it honored him at a dinner in the Chamber of Commerce building, for completing the construction of the new East Boston tunnel and the Governor Square subway extension, without loss of a single life.

PUT YOURSELF ON SPOT

You're sick of life.
"I'm more dead
"Than alive," you say;
"Nothing matters any more.
"I've lost my pep;
"Don't give a hoot
"For anything.
"I'm all washed up.
"Life has me down,
"So what's the use
"Of going on?
"Yet even while "You're saying this,
Something inside you—
Some almost lost
But still living,
Part of you—
Is longing,
Is praying,
Crying, crying
To begin again;
To be hot and eager,
Restless and reckless
And young again.
But how can you get hot
When you've grown cold?
How can you be young
When you've grown old?
How can you make yourself
Go on
When most of you wants to quit?
Is there a way?
Yes, there is!

No matter
How old you are,
You can get young.
No matter
How cold you are,
You can get hot—
BY PUTTING YOURSELF
AND KEEPING YOURSELF
ON A SPOT!

You think
Life has you down,
But Life hasn't Got you down.
Your own laziness
And cowardice
And conceit
Have you down.
You've grown cold and old;
You've lost your eagerness
And curiosity.
Not because Life's a mess
Or Fate's a messie,
Or because Prosperity
Are a bunch of Double-crossin' So-and-So's,
BUT BECAUSE YOU YOURSELF
HAVE STOPPED TAKING CHANCES.

Why'd you stop?
I don't know
Maybe because Things were too soft;
Maybe because
Things were too hard.
Whichever it was,
You've bedded down
In a rut
Of comfort and despair,
Sappy pleasantness
And shut yourself away
From all the rough challenges
And dangerous adventure,
Of faith or of fury,
Which keep men alive
AND SO YOU'RE GONE DEAD.
Then how can you
Change things?
How keep yourself moving
When you're ready to drop?
How keep yourself hoping
When your whole life's a flop?

BY PUTTING YOURSELF
ON SOME MIGHTY LIVELY SPOT!
But where can you
Find it?
You can't!
YOU MUST MAKE IT!
You'd hustle,
Wouldn't you,
If you'd something
To hustle for?
You'd hope
If you'd something
To hope for.
You'd fight
Once more
If you'd something
To fight for.
"I'm just
"Waiting for a chance,"
You say,
DON'T WAIT!
MAKE THAT CHANCE!
Fix things
So you can't quit,
Can't take things easy,
Can't surrender
To either happiness
Or despair.
Fix things
So you've got
To hope and hustle
And keep yourself hot—
BY PUTTING YOURSELF
ON A SPOT!
Meaning what?
Meaning this.
Stop taking things
As they come.
Stop "making
The best of things."
Stop waiting for
"Something to turn up."
TURN UP SOMETHING FOR YOURSELF!
Yank yourself
Out of that rut!
Reach out
Deliberately,

Some new adventure
With a lot of grief
Attached;
Something that will
Keep you hustling,
Wondering and worrying
Whether you want to
Or not—
SOMETHING THAT WILL KEEP YOU ON THE SPOT!
DO SOMETHING RECKLESS!
SOMETHING EXTRAVAGANT,
SOMETHING UNPOPULAR, SOMETHING THAT WILL RAISE CAIN
WITH YOUR COSY
STATUS QUO!
What, for example?
Anything —
Anything, at long
As it's healthy;
As long as it keeps you
Moving with life.
GO IN DEBT!
HAVE A FIGHT!
BUY A CAR,
OR A RANCH!
HAVE A BABY!
CHANGE YOUR JOB:
MAKE NEW FRIENDS.
Anything.
And decent
And chancy;
As long as it keeps you
ON A SPOT!

What'll happen?
Quien sabe?
Who knows?
Lots of things!
Maybe some'll be
Fine and dandy;
Maybe some'll be
Plenty tough.
But don't worry!
Just get busy—
LET LIFE HAPPEN.
THAT'S ENOUGH!

Against One Language -:- By Winifred Black

So now we must have a universal language, must we?

And the little fat Esquimo in his fur coat and seal skin cap can tell the Fiji islander with a ring in his nose and a breach clout for his dinner dress, just what he thinks of the eel pie the cook from San Domingo has made and set before him.

And the Russian beauty can tell her blonde head and as all kinds of peculiar things to the Dusnns from Spain, and everything will be so nice and so friendly, don't you know, and everybody will be nice and friendly, too.

Well, gentlemen, I agree with you.

I don't agree with you at all.

It isn't language that keeps us apart, it's distance and climate and the things in our own hearts which distance and climate have put there.

Go up to Greenland and live in an igloo for six months and see how much interested you are in the cultivation of roses.

Step down to the tropics and walk in and out of the sea by moonlight and by starlight and by sunlight—and try to take an interest in the fur business.

My neighbor and I speak the same language, or anyhow it sounds like the same language, but he never knows what I mean when I speak and I can't for the life of me understand what's he's trying to tell me.

I like different languages and different clothes and different foods and different ways of life and different ideas myself.

What will be the fun of living in a world if we're all going to look alike and eat alike and think alike?

Why you might as well be a snail and crawl around with your own house on your own head, mightn't you?

I like a South Sea Islander to be a South Sea Islander, and of all people in the world that I do not like at all, give me the real cosmopolite—the man who's as much at home in Fleet street, as he is on Broadway, and who can't tell for the life of him whether he's English or American.

I want an American to be—an American.

I like a Yankee to be a Yankee, with his "cut and his cuttan"—of course, he means his coat and his curtain, but I like to hear him say it in the good old Yankee way.

I love to hear a Virginian talk about his "gyarden," and call his neighbor "Bub"—and if I lived in Kansas, I'd wear a sunflower on my coat every day in the year as long as the sunflowers were in bloom.

The same language, the same thoughts, the same ways—ugh, it bores me to the verge of tears to even think of it.

I love you not because you're like me and my Aunt Mary and my Uncle Bill. I love you because you're different, and that's the only hope I have that you some time, somehow, somewhere may like me—just a little.

THE SUN DIAL

On the sun dial's weathered face
Such a cheering line I trace,
And the song birds and the flowers
Seem to glory in the place.

As the little shadow falls
On the numerals of time,
Thick with aging rust and grime,
I see clocks on countless walls
Which the saddened hours must chime.

I see clocks throughout the years,
Through the night and through the day,
That have ticked the hours away,
When all eyes were wet with tears
And the skies were leaden gray.

Ancient dial in the sun,
Set amid the summer flowers,
Would like you the joy were ours
With all darkness to be done
And count none but sunny hours.

Isn't It True?

Referring to Mrs. Roosevelt's hobbies, we are inclined to think a pet factory is of more use to the public than a pet cat.

The world owes us $22,650,000,000, but that's not much when we realize we're never going to get it.

Human Side of the News; Message From Edison

By Edwin C. Hill

Deep night. A dark room far up in the tower of the Empire State Building in New York City. A hushed circle awaiting in a pulchral silence a spirit message from Thomas Alva Edison.

The medium, Mrs. Wilhelmina Werner, writhes and mutters in a self-hypnotic spell. Near her, in the all enveloping gloom, the well-groomed Joseph Dunninger, magician and foe of all spiritualistic mediums, speaks in soothing tones:

"Tell me, Mr. Edison, something about our last meeting. I ask for the ten words you wrote for me upon a piece of paper which I hold here in my hand. Give me those ten words once more and then I shall know, without doubt, that you are talking to me from the spirit world beyond the veil."

NOT RIGHT WORD

He is silent, waiting. Once more the face of the medium is contorted. Her eyes roll. Her body shakes and trembles. A single word bursts from her lips, the word "Tonawanda."

Now, Tonowanda is a town in the state of New York, up by Niagara Falls, and of a street in Boston, but it is not one of the 10 words left by Thomas A. Edison to prove, if possible, that the spirits of the dead can communicate with the living.

And thus the other night another medium failed to win the $10,000 offered by Joseph Dunninger, a noted professional magician, whose feats have baffled the keenest and most observing.

Mr. Dunninger posted a certified check of $10,000 and agreed to give the money to any spiritist medium who could perform a feat beyond his own powers as a sleight of hand artist. So far, not a single medium has been able to do it.

RICH HARVEST REAPED

Dunninger is so clever that the Prince of Wales forgot all about dancing at a Long Island party and asked to be taught a few tricks which he now takes pride in performing for the mystification of the royal family and his friends.

Dunninger, who spends his life in testing spiritualism and fortune tellers, says that in New York alone fortune tellers reap a harvest of five million dollars a year, and that nearly all of the "tricks" of the mediums can be duplicated by an expert with a pocket wireless outfit and a collapsible fishing rod.

Not long ago, when Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, perhaps the world's most noted convert to spiritualism, was in this country, a friend of mine, Joseph C. Rinn, offered him five thousand dollars if he, Rinn, couldn't reproduce every feat performed by the spiritualistic mediums.

Joe Rinn, who is a humdrum produce dealer in daily life, and a first-rate amateur magician after dark, does stunts that are beyond belief. One night, with a party of friends, I helped tie him hand and foot.

ANOTHER HOUDINI

We made the knots so tight and hard that it was impossible to believe he could wriggle loose even a finger or two. And then we gagged him, stuffing his mouth with cotton. Then we locked him in a little room, together with a cornet, a banjo, a few bells, a pitcher of milk and a pitcher of black coffee.

We went out, locking the only door. And within one minute there was a solo from the cornet, a lively plunking from the banjo and a jangling chorus of bells. Then silence.

We rushed back into the room and there was Joe Rinn, still tied hand and foot, still gagged. And when we looked at the pitcher of milk it had become half milk and half coffee, and the pitcher of black coffee had become half coffee and half milk.

Whether they are right or wrong I don't know, but such amazing magicians as Dunninger and Rinn, who admit that they are tricksters out and out, denounce all mediums as either frauds or self-hypnotized. They assert that not one single proved message or word has ever come from beyond the veil. God wills it otherwise, they tell us.

And one thinks of Glendower's words to Hotspur in King Henry the Fourth.

"I can call spirits from the vasty deep," said Glendower. Said Hotspur: "Why, so can I, or so can any man; but, will they come when you do call for them?"

Roosevelt Leadership Feature of Last Congress

By James T. Williams, Jr.

History will doubtless find in the legislative leadership of the President the distinctive feature of the life and work of the seventy-third Congress.

From first to last, this leadership has been chiefly responsible for the sum and the substance of the legislative enactments of the first Congress to meet since the Norris amendment which limited the Congress to one regular session, but left to the President's discretion the convening of Congress in extra session.

EXPERTS TO FORCE

Nearly all of the legislation enacted by this Congress, both at the extra session which met soon after President Roosevelt's inauguration, and at the regular session, which began last January, originated in the White House.

A great deal of this legislation was drafted by executive experts. These experts assisted the Congressional committees in preparing the bills and reports and in perfecting the amendments that were necessary either to meet the requirements of the President or to overcome opposition in Congress.

The seventy-third Congress has been chiefly engaged from the day it started until its close in delegating to the President its constitutional authorities and responsibility, and in approving his recommendations for the appropriations of vast sums of public money to be expended under his direction.

Although the President has not obtained all the legislation he desired, no President in history has been more successful in heading off legislation which he did not wish.

Of the comparatively few vetoes recorded under this administration, the only one which Congress has overridden was that of the independent offices' bill. This measure Mr. Roosevelt disapproved because, according to his estimate, it added $228,000,000 a year to the federal tax burden inflicted upon the people, and revived a form of "presumptive" disability payments for veterans which he vigorously condemned.

PLANNING NEW FIGHT

The only treaty which the President attempted without success to have ratified was the St. Lawrence waterways treaty. The defeat of this treaty is generally attributed to railroad opposition, just as the overriding of the President's veto of the independent offices' act was chiefly due to the opposition of veterans' organizations.

But the President has put the country on notice that he will renew his effort at the beginning of the next Congress to obtain the Senate's advice and consent to the ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty, and few are the senators who believe that his next effort will not succeed.

Seldom in days of peace has political partisanship been so conspicuous by its absence as during the life of the seventy-third Congress. There have been comparatively few divisions on strictly party lines on most of the administration measures for which the Congress is nominally responsible.

The leadership of action raised up by the President and the docility with which the Congress has followed where he led have been due to two causes:

The common preference for the legislative leadership of the President to any leadership of which the Democratic party in Congress appeared to be capable.

The record will show that the Democratic House, for the most part, been bereft of any leadership of its own creation and that the Democratic Senate has on frequent occasions refused to support such leadership as it possessed.

DEPRESSION ON WHITE HOUSE

The leaderless condition of the House finally necessitated the adoption of a drastic gag rule, the real purpose of which was to discipline the Democratic majority in that body, a majority generally considered to be too large to be workable.

The reluctance of the Democratic majority in the Senate to support its leadership finally subjected the Senate to the supine predicament in which it found itself last Saturday night. The majority leadership was unable to carry out its agreement with the minority or its agreement with the House to adjourn on that day. This necessitated the recess over the week-end and served to warn the country how completely dependent the seventy-third Congress has been from first to last upon the legislative leadership of the man in the White House.

In time of war, such dependence is customary. In time of peace, it has seldom gone so far.
